Canadian teams came up winners in international hockey games Sunday. New Westminster Bruins of the Western Canada Hockey League defeated Moscow Selects 3-1 in Vancouver while in Winnipeg, the World Hockey Association's Jets pull out a 6-5 victory. Page 10.

Washington Redskins gained the eighth and final berth in the National Football League playoffs Sunday with a 27-14 victory over Dallas Cowboys. The Redskins will meet Minnesota Vikings in the playoff at Minnesota. Page 10.

It had been two years, eight months and nine games ago since New York Rangers last defeated Montreal Canadiens, but all that ended at Madison Square Garden Sunday night. Rod Gilbert, playing in his 1,000th career game, had three assists to take over second place in the National Hockey League scoring race as the Rangers defeated the Canadiens 5-2. Page 10.

Vancouver Island rugby observed its 100th anniversary Saturday when its select side, Crimson Tide, defeated The Rest of Canada 14-4 with a smart, second-half performance at Royal Athletic Park. Page 12.

Levesque said that for Quebec "the structure and operation of the present system of government are not really profitable, and in fact are becoming more and more of a headache."

Texts of the statements by the two leaders were issued outside the closed conference. Also released from the conference was a statement by Donald Macdonald, federal finance minister, in which he shifted ground on some points of difference but stood by his refusal to budge on a major disagreement over taxing powers.

The federal minister, speaking at a meeting between Prime Minister Trudeau and the provincial premiers, rejected a demand by the provinces for more taxing power in place of a system of payments known as revenue guarantees which expire next March.

Levesque reiterated in a formal statement that his government aims at political sovereignty for Quebec and a new economic association with the rest of Canada.

AUSTRALIA RAISES $

SYDNEY. Australia (Reuter) — The Australian government revalued its currency upwards against the U.S. dollar today for the second time since a record 17.5-per-cent devaluation two weeks ago. The Labor opposition party accused the government of incompetence.

The Reserve Bank said the Australian dollar is being revalued by 1.28 per cent and now will be worth $1.0521 U.S., compared with $1.0388 Friday.

The net devaluation since the surprise devaluation announced on Nov. 28 now stands at 14.66 per cent.

When Cliff Harrison goes shopping for lottery tickets he doesn't stop at buying one or two — he buys them by the hundreds.

Take the last Loto Canada draw for example. The 72-year-old North Pender Island resident had 400 tickets riding on that one!

And the Provincial. So far he's got 500 tickets and expects to buy several hundred more before the big draw New Year's Eve.

How does he afford it? Simple. He sells nine tenths interest in the tickets to his friends, relatives, the public. The remaining share he keeps for himself.

At first it was just a diversion. Now it's a business. He's even formed his own company — Cliff Harrison Personal Lottery Service, duly registered at the Companies Office.

Why does he do it? That's simple.

"I like to gamble," he says. "And it's a lot cheaper than going to Reno or Las Vegas once or twice a year."

As a gambler he knows lottery buyers are playing against some pretty heavy odds unless they spread their chances on a number of tickets.

For $10, Harrison's customers get a one tenth share in a block of 10 different tickets carefully selected with no two tickets sequentially numbered and mixed equally among the lottery series.

Harrison says he photostats the block, sends a copy to the customer and places the ticket in a Victoria lottery distributor, United Commercial Travellers, and as such is entitled to a discount, 50 cents on the $5 Provincial ticket and 40 cents on the $10 Loto Canada.

Harrison, a retired salesman and businessman, laughs

just sells tickets. That's all they do. But me, I try to offer a personal service."

The idea germinated last spring when he and his family made group purchases on two Olympic draws — buying nine in one, 15 in the other. They won $100 in the first and doubled their money in the second.

Harrison says he photostats the block, sends a copy to the customer and places the ticket in a Victoria lottery distributor, United Commercial Travellers, and as such is entitled to a discount, 50 cents on the $5 Provincial ticket and 40 cents on the $10 Loto Canada.

Harrison, a retired salesman and businessman, laughs

at any suggestion he's making a profit. His promotional costs, he says, run into the hundreds of dollars and so far have been met largely out of his own pocket.

But it's been worth it.

The response to his ads, he says, has justified his judgment there are a lot of people who share his view that, with lotteries, group participation is the only way to go.

He received $3,600 in his campaign soliciting partners in the last Loto. Adding $400 of his own money he bought 400 tickets.

The fact there were only four winning tickets worth a total of $1,200 doesn't deter him. Neither apparently has it deterred his customers. The money keeps pouring in.

"Let's face it," he says, "you can't deny lotteries are becoming a way of life and are here to stay."

He restricts his service to those lotteries offering a million dollar first prize. Anything less isn't worth his time or effort.

"I'll never win a million dollars . . . but maybe $100,000," he muses.

But if he did he hasn't a clue what he'd do with the money.

"To tell the truth I've never thought much about it."

The reason is, he explains, he's having too much fun right now.

TEA SLOWS U.K.

LONDON (Reuters) — Longer tea breaks by workers are among the reasons British factory building is slower than abroad, an industrial report said today.

The report by the National Economic Development Office, from a study of 18 British and foreign factory sites, said British projects take longer, have higher manning levels for lower productivity, and less of the working day is spent working — largely as a result of more generous allowances for such things as tea breaks, walking to and from work and time-wasting activities.

BIG ATTRACTION on the weekend for boaters near Tacoma was a pod of about 15 killer whales, two of which are seen on the surface in Hale Passage.

City Firemen Vote To Strike Jan. 1

Victoria firefighters say they will strike Jan. 1 unless, in the next two and a half weeks, they receive payment in full of their 1976 arbitration award granting them parity with their Vancouver counterparts.

Ross Cameron, president of the Victoria local of the International Firefighters Association, said today a strike vote conducted over the weekend was supported by 97 per cent of the membership.

He said the city refuses to honor its commitments under the arbitration settlement, and the firefighters are "fed up and sick and tired of this whole schmooze."

"As of zero-zero-one hours Jan. 1 if we haven't received full implementation of the award — with the exception of a couple of items still to be clarified — plus full retroactivity, we'll be going out," he added.

Victoria firefighters were recently awarded a 7½ percent increase. Victoria firefighters had been given an interim increase of 2.56 percent, along with fringe benefits.

City manager Jim Bramley said today the municipal employers' group, the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association, has offered what is in effect another four percent, bringing firefighters up to "the ultimate maximum as far as Anti-Inflation Board regulations for 1976 are concerned."

The original arbitration award granting Victoria parity with Vancouver was higher than that, and Bramley expressed the personal view that both awards will be rolled back.

"They (Victoria firefighters) want the interim increase granted to Vancouver even if it would have to repay those monies," he said.

"What they appear to be saying is they don't give a damn about that — until the time they have to pay it back."

Cameron said the city is "using every excuse in the book to stall" because it is trying to pre-determine AIB attitudes.

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — Prime Minister Ian Smith said today a Rhodesian settlement is further off now than before the Geneva conference.

He told reporters at Jan Smuts Airport here on his way home from the talks that he could not report that real progress has been made.

In fact, I think we are further away from the objective than when we started," he said.

But he said that as long as people are working on a solution there is hope.

Smith returned home after rejecting new British proposals for the transfer of power to his country's black majority.

Informed sources said the new plan called for a direct British role in the government of the breakaway colony during the transition to black from white rule, including possible British control of military and police forces.

Smith told reporters he liked the latest British suggestions "no more than I like the other ideas that have come from the British."

British control of the security forces is "a ghastly thought," said Smith, who 11 years ago unilaterally declared Rhodesia's independence from Britain.

During the Second World War, the executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada was a refugee in southern France.

During that period she learned "how frighteningly extreme hunger hurts and degrades."

Deeply affected by her experience, she organized the USC in 1945 in order to help "those huge, silent, suffering masses of human beings" who don't get enough to eat.

Since that time she has criss-crossed the world many times over in her battle against poverty and suffering.

In the first six months of this year, she visited 17 countries, travelling 35,000 miles overseas and 25,000 miles in Canada which she crossed twice.

As a result of her efforts, and through annual fund-raising and special gifts, the USC now supports 147 projects in 12 countries, four of which are among the least developed countries in the world.

Those four, which will receive the lion's share of the $2.5 million, the objective of this year's fund drive, are Bangladesh, Lesotho in southern Africa, Nepal and Vietnam.

Peasants Told To Leave Land

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A federal judge has overturned former president Luis Echeverria's expropriation of 250,000 acres of farm lands for peasants in Sonora state and ordered the land returned to its former owners, it was announced on the weekend.

The leader of a rural farm workers' organization immediately warned that the nation's landless peasants could be forced into armed revolt if Mexico's new government backs the reversal of Echeverria's expropriation order and attempts to oust the peasants from the land.

Titles to the lands were ordered given to the impoverished peasants in the U.S. border state of Sonora by Echeverria last Nov. 19, only three weeks before he turned the presidency over to Jose Lopez Portillo.

His action triggered a major protest, not only by the affected farm owners in Sonora, but by private property

No Rush To Talk Regional

DUNCAN — Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis reiterated on the weekend that he will not rush into a discussion on regional districts with the Cowichan Valley Regional Board.

For the second time in a month, Curtis told Cowichan Valley board chairman Pat Clements that he wants to wait until regional districts have been reviewed at the provincial level before meeting with him.

Curtis pointed out in his letter to Clements that matters relating to land use in municipalities and electoral areas of regional districts are now under review by the province. "And I have no intentions of discussing proposed changes which may or may not reach the floor of the Legislature," Curtis said. He suggested that if the Cowichan Valley has some specific concern, it should contact the minister's deputy or assistant deputy.

Cowichan Valley board members decided to wait until February to make any further enquiries. Saltair director John Dobell talked with Curtis, recently and said that while the minister made no firm commitment, he suggested "something might be done on this matter in February."

SEPARATE TREATMENT

The B.C. Human Rights Commission says it has found several major areas where the native Indian's life is profoundly different from that of the balance of Canadians.

The five-member commission, headed by Bishop Remi De Roo, of Victoria, says in a report that native children are frequently removed from their homes but rarely placed in other native homes as foster children or for adoption.

The commissioners also cite a lack of school curriculum with relevance to Indian life and culture and under Indian control, resulting in a school dropout rate for Indian children of 90 per cent.

Life expectancy among natives averages 40 years compared to a national average of 65 to 70, indicating, says the commission, a need for increased health information and health resources for native people.

Although Indians make up two per cent of the national population, they constitute 60 per cent of the prison population, the commission says.

The Provincial Praying Mantises

Despite the need for a strong federal government at this delicate time in Canadian history the face of Confederation continues to blur in the backwash of every federal provincial conference. If current trends are any indication Ottawa will withdraw completely from financing education, hospital insurance and medicare within the decade. There will no longer be a national standard of social service as a result. Each province will do its own thing on the basis of government philosophy, and more often, political pragmatism.

This will be a tragedy, considering the superlative system that Canadian regimes have slowly enacted, prodded by the CCF and its successor, the NDP, over the last 30 odd years. Interprovincial rivalry in basic social fields can have regressive effects. It is this rivalry, as columnist Richard Gwyn writes, that explains one of the reasons our education system is the most expensive in the world.

New social programs, by definition, will be parochial in scope. Plans such as B.C.'s pharmacare will never be extended to many parts of the country. Second language training in regional universities will receive a low priority as administrations fight to keep existing programs. The humanitarianism and urbanity that is the hallmark of a national government will erode, replaced with insular aims of the sometimes bizarre regimes Canadians elect in the provinces.

We, in B.C. received an omen of what might happen when Finance Minister Evan Wolfe returned from the federal provincial finance ministers conference last week. He metaphorically wrung his hands about possible cutbacks in schools and hospitals if B.C. doesn't get $138 million it deserves under the old revenue-sharing plan. This government's obsession with a balanced budget means it would cut back basic services rather than go into deficit spending. That appeared to be Wolfe's basic message.

Yet all things considered, the provinces did quite a bit better at the conference than the finance minister's remarks would indicate. Through a combination of tax points ceded to the provinces and federal cash grants the over all provincial take will increase by $1 billion per year in 1981. Another $1.3 billion demanded by the provinces under a complicated revenue guarantee formula will probably mean junior governments will collect one-third of this amount in the end. It is also fascinating to note the provinces unanimously opposed amendments to the Bank Act, providing for more competition in the industry and better breaks for consumers.

In the interests of the nation as a whole, it is time Ottawa slammed the door on these grasping provincial hands. Given a choice, most Canadians would probably vote for the national government as opposed to its provincial analogues. Even in these troubled times, wracked by scandal and stupid political mistakes, it remains the national government of Canada, no matter the party in power. Its action and intent are national in scope, benefitting or hurting all Canadians. A provincial regime, by its very nature, has a limited reach and a narrower vision. Parliament Hill should not become merely a brokerage house for 10 entrepreneurs intent on bleeding Johnny Canuck white for parochial balanced budgets.

Merry Christmas, Council

Yes there is a Santa Claus, and he lives at city hall. The kids of Blanshard Court got their present early this year but it won't be any less welcome.

In the spirit of the season, Victoria city council has approved the purchase for $100,000 of the Winnifred Clark centre from the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded.

after first waffling around on the question.

It's none too early, either, for the association's offer to sell to the city expires in two days. By the by, Ald. Ron Mackenzie's assertion that council is "attempting to rush the matter" is almost laughable. The idea has been talked about for at least two years.

A bah, humbug to the scourge of Blanshard Court.

While grace notes are being distributed, a few plaudits to Ald. Murray Glazier in his attempts to get the Capital Regional District to organize some solid research into the Victoria region's faltering economy. And Mayor Mike Young should get the cooperation of all citizens in his efforts to find ways and means of attracting more industry to the region.

Merry Christmas, gentlemen.

W. A. WILSON

It's Not Business as Usual

Ottawa — One critical aspect of the problem facing Canada today arises from the fact that the Parti Quebecois victory is based on a popular movement, separatism, and that there is no comparable federalist movement as the base for other political parties and action.

Federalism is at best a habit and a matter of history rather than a force for which ordinary Canadians seem prepared to strive in the way that its opponents strove for a separatist victory in Quebec. That victory is incomplete — there is so far no mandate for separation as such — but no one should use that fact to underestimate the ground that has been won by those who wish for an independent Quebec.

There is clearly a sense of national purpose in Quebec today. It would be a reckless analyst who would claim to see a national purpose in the rest of Canada. It is perhaps because nothing of the sort has been evident in Canada for so long, because so much of the country has been at an ill-tempered state of cross-purposes, that the climate in Quebec has been favorable to separation.

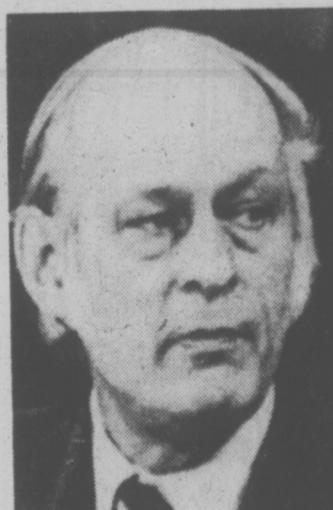

The Pequiste minister in Quebec will apparently seek presently to conduct simultaneous negotiations aimed at securing both the independence of the province and an economic association, as strong at least as a customs union, with the rest of Canada. It seems to me that they gravely underestimate the difficulties that would confront them.

Difficulties Underestimated

Even if a federal government could be brought to discuss the issue of Quebec independence, which in itself would endanger its own survival, there would be a terrible cleavage at the western Ontario border the instant an economic alliance with an independent Quebec were mentioned.

If in the rest of the country it is necessary for people to begin to think the unthinkable and face the likelihood that Quebec will in fact break away, it is equally essential that the Pequiste ministers should be realists and themselves face the unthinkable. In their case it is that the safeguarding conditions probably cannot be secured.

Historically, Quebec and Ontario have an economic if not a political need for each other. Once the western border of Ontario is crossed, all feeling of such need comes to an end. The people there do not feel in need of a continuing economic association with Quebec or, for that matter, with Ontario. On the contrary, they feel that they are the victims of their past association with central Canada, that their interests have been subordinated to the common economic interests of Quebec and Ontario. If there is any desire in western Canada to hold the federation together it is an

of some sort between Ontario and an independent Quebec.

The combination, however, of national disappointments and western opposition to a Quebec customs union would be a formidable barrier to any easy accommodation. It is not easy to imagine Ontario breaking with the western provinces for the sake of a customs union with Quebec. In such a situation, moreover, the position of the Atlantic provinces would be of consequence.

The migration from the maritimes to the rest of Canada has brought with it strong ties of emotion and it seems likely that there would be a considerable concern for the situation of the maritimes cut off from the rest of Canada. There are still some gut feelings left in Canada even if it is hard today to discern a true will to preserve the nation.

These things are worth discussing now because we have already entered a critical period that in all probability will be extremely difficult and rather prolonged. No one in power can afford to base himself on illusions now.

On both sides there will be an intense interest in our economic ties with the United States, which are very large. So far as the export of most (but not all) raw materials and competitively priced electricity is concerned, there would be no great problems for even the smallest remnants of Canada. There would be worse problems where agricultural products are concerned. These still are of economic consequence even in the urban societies that exist in both Quebec and Ontario.

There would be worse consequences in manufactured goods. Even the existing Canadian entity suffers from too small a domestic market to form a healthy basis for an export trade in manufactures. We have such trade, but it is hard-won and grows slowly.

The will that exists to secure the independence of Quebec may not yet be a majority phenomenon but its strength is unmistakable. It is not primarily an economic question. It is a matter of pride, a desire to shed minority status, a desire for a smaller, more controllable community. If the will to preserve the present Canada exists or develops, that will be no more primarily economic than its Quebec counterpart. These things are essentially emotional and psychological.

Fundamental Change

Yet the economic considerations cannot be ignored and, to their credit, men like Jacques Parizeau and René Lévesque are not attempting to do that. They are seeking solutions but those at which they are looking seem more attractive than practical. They appear to have underestimated the difficulties.

On the federal side there is no greater reason to feel encouraged. Quite apart from the basic question of national will, which is uncertain, there is so far a tendency to take a "business as usual" approach. No one would expect that new policies could have been formulated between Nov. 15 and the opening of the finance ministers' conference last week. Yet one would have hoped that no one on the federal side would have viewed it as business as usual because in federal-provincial relations fundamental things changed with the election of the Perquiste majority.

René Lévesque is not just a provincial finance minister like the others. He is a finance minister seeking both money and the independence of his province. So business is not at all as usual.

Laetrile

Concerning the article by Murray Katz, The Laetrile Conspiracy (Times, Nov. 29), it is interesting to speculate on the reasons underlying such a wild assault upon everyone and everything associated with the use of laetrile and, by implication, with other dietary regimes currently employed in many of the enlightened parts of the world to cure cancer and restore the patient to health, rather than excise, radiate or poison the symptom without attempting to eliminate the cause.

No doubt Dr. Katz and others of the orthodox medical profession are genuinely concerned for their patients, but it seems to me their concern falls short when it comes to a change in their own thinking which is evidently constricted to a somewhat tubular view by the nature of their training and the ultraconservative code under which they practise. Jealous of their status and blinded by their own haloes, they seem unable, and certainly unwilling, to admit that after all their methods might just possibly be improved, and they are angered and worried by the gradual but growing awareness of people, sick to death of drugs and surgery, that there is a better way to go. However, all the railings and breast-beatings of the Dr. Katzes do not alter the fact that many, many cancer victims are alive and well today as a result of dietary changes, including in some cases the use of Laetrile.

Mr. Editor, there is no "laetrile Conspiracy," rather a conspiracy by an inflexible medical hierarchy designed to maintain its position at all costs. — John A. Faulkner, 3429 Quadra Street.

Christ Church Dean Brian Whitlow occupies uncomfortable pew these days.

Women Priests

We strongly protest Dean Brian Whitlow's denunciation of women Anglican Priests and his statement that the church has been "dealt a grievous blow."

Can the Bible be any clearer on the subject than the following?

"There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female; for ye are all one in Jesus Christ." (Galatians 3:28)

With this statement, Paul radically altered his earlier implications about the subordination of women and, in fact, implied a new equality in Christ. (see also I Cor. 11:11-12)

Earlier statements by Paul follow the religious presuppositions of Judaism of the time. But Paul worked with several women in his ministry: Chloe (Cor. 1:11); his friends Priscilla and Aquila were mentioned in other references to the Corinthian ministry, and Phoebe (Rom. 16) was Paul's fellow worker and patroness of the church.

It is not theology, but established traditional social custom adopted by the church which prevents women from fulfilling their full potential when called to serve God. — The Status of Women Action Group per. M. Robertson, president cerned with the immortal souls of their members. The church is. When you start tampering with its fundamental principles you tread on very dangerous ground.

This will probably upset Ruff and Robertson even further — and for that I am sorry — but at the moment I do not take kindly to the thought of accepting a woman as my father. — John T. Richards, 219 Howe Street.

Gov't. Controls

I am writing in regards to your front page article concerning a "cooling-off" period for people planning to get married.

I must agree wholeheartedly with the Right Honorable Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm. Any couple who wish to marry in this day and age should be compelled to take a government controlled counselling program and then, subsequently, to write examinations proving that they are indeed in love. After all, what do young people today know about real love? Their blood flows hot and, besides, their minds have been poisoned by the outrageously pornographic and violent shows on television and in the theatre. It is the government's responsibility to set the example and to tabulate a definitive set of moral guidelines for us all to follow! I also do not believe there should be any age cut-off in this new proposal (I'm 95). We must have control and it must come soon, before it is too late!

By the way, while you are at it, Bill, when can I have permission to wipe my nose? — D. Reed, 520 Rithet Street.

Unmitigated Sexism

Regarding the comments of the Very Reverend Brian Whitlow on the subject of the ordination of women to the Anglican priesthood, quoted in the Dec. 6, edition of your paper, I shall resist the temptation of delivering a vitriolic personal attack upon Dean Whitlow.

Suffice it to say, that regardless of archaic tradition, to advocate disqualification of half the population from a job where the performance is not contingent upon physical characteristics, is unmitigated sexism.

In my view, to actively perpetrate such discrimination against women amongst his parishioners demeans not only Dean Whitlow himself, but the church he represents as well. — Christine Anderson, 915 Bank Street.

Frivolous

I am distressed that supposedly thinking women, in positions which give them excellent opportunities for publicity, should take such a frivolous attitude to the Very Reverend Brian Whitlow's parish letter.

I fear Mesdames Mimi Robertson and Kathleen Ruff are confusing the Anglican Church with their friendly neighborhood Kiwanis Club. At any rate, I presume the rules and bylaws of a service club can be changed at the whim of a majority of members. But service clubs are not con-

House Fiasco

The account of the fiasco in the House of Commons reported in the Victoria Times, Dec. 3 (Trudeau Retracts, But No Apology), I found rather pathetic. The prime minister retracted his statement that a member of the opposition had used lies only with reluctance but refused an apology. The prime minister gave the definition of the word lie and quoted the dictionary. How vacuous!

When a prime minister has to resort to the use of a dictionary to define his meaning of the word lie, it becomes obvious that we have reached the bottom in parliamentary debate.

When you are wrong you can argue all you will, to no avail. To apologize will enhance your stature. — Philip Saville, 515 Foul Bay Road.

Exodus From The East

By WILLIAM KENDT
London Observer

The large numbers of ordinary East Germans now applying for permission to emigrate to the West are showing a degree of courage which would have been inconceivable two or three years ago.

Reliable sources in Berlin speak of between 90,000 and 120,000 applications, one application sometimes being made for a whole family. Many of them are young people, among whom it has become fashionable "to have an application going."

This upsurge of civic self-confidence is a direct result of detente, and in particular of the Helsinki accord signed by European and North American leaders 18 months ago. This agreement, which pledges governments to work for greater contact between ordinary people divided by the Iron Curtain, has given many who would be East German emigrants the arguments they need. So has the United Nations Declaration of Human Rights which states that every human being has the right to leave his own country. Applicants have been pointing out to the authorities that East Germany is a signatory of both the UN Declaration and the Helsinki accord.

For many officials, more used to subjects asking for favours than citizens insisting on their rights, the present wave of applications has come rather as a shock. One senior bureaucrat in East Berlin is reported as saying: "It's rather strange: people are not frightened any more."

There is evidence that the party leadership is divided over how to handle the flood of exit applications. Some leaders see it as an opportunity to get rid of the potential troublemakers. Others argue strongly that every successful application would merely encourage others, and that this would have a destabilizing effect.

The East German leaders are particularly anxious to avoid any actions which weaken either the morale or the numbers of the work force. The country has a chronic labour shortage, despite a small annual increase in the work force which will continue until the mid-1980s. This situation explains the contents, if not the tone, of the harsh remark allegedly made by a member of the secret police to someone who has applied to emigrate: "It is not you we want, but your labour. So as long as we need you, you'll stay here."

Up till now, such arguments have been decisive. The number of East Germans allowed to leave is small. Many applications have been ignored; others have been refused.

Reprisals have been taken against some applicants. Werner Schonher's application cost him his job at the Stralsund shipyard on the Baltic. His wife, a teacher, was also fired, and his daughter was expelled from school. Other applicants have been luckier. A locksmith who was sacked after submitting an exit application was reinstated by his works council. The council claimed that the man was a reliable worker and that his wish to emigrate was a private matter.

Another uncomfortable way of emigrating is escape — whether hidden in a West German car on the transit route to West Berlin, via another Communist country, by disguise or false papers, or even over the Berlin Wall. Every year, about 5,000 East Germans successfully use one of these routes.

However, clearly defined groups of people can get out less dangerously. One is to take advantage of the clause in the Basic Treaty, signed by the two German States three years ago, which allows East Germans separated from their wives or children in the Federal Republic to submit exit applications. Such applications are considered much more sympathetically than those of the "human rights" variety. Last year, nearly 10,000 GDR citizens with spouses or children in the West were allowed out.

The one guaranteed method of getting permission to emigrate to the West is to wait until retirement age. As the GDR has an unusually high proportion of pensioners in the population — who are a burden on the economy — it is usually very co-operative about exit applications for old people. Hence the sick joke, always current when the regime celebrates its birthday with great pomp and circumstance, about how enthusiastic the entire population will be when the East German State becomes 65. Why, goes the punchline, then everyone will be able to leave!

The growth in emigration requests has come at a bad time for the regime. Higher prices both for the much-needed capital goods from the West and the essential raw materials (especially oil) from the Soviet Union have forced it to slow down improvements in living standards.

A steady growth in affluence has been at the heart of Communist strategy since the building of the Berlin Wall in 1961. Both Eric Honecker, the East German leader, and his predecessor, Walter Ulbricht, hoped that consumer satisfaction would reconcile the population to being locked inside their own country. This strategy is now at risk, especially as that great magnet, West Germany, is moving out of recession.

In such a situation the regime is bound to be nervous about any signs of popular dissatisfaction. A useful barometer of the party's mood is always its Kulturrevolution — its policy towards the arts and the intellectuals. Significantly, the past few weeks have seen the biggest attack on independent and critical artists for 10 years.

First, the poet Reiner Kunze was expelled from the Writers' Federation for a controversial book in West Germany. Then the singer and dissident Wolf Biermann was deprived of his nationality while on a tour abroad and will not be allowed to return home. For those East Germans who, unlike Biermann, do want to emigrate, these steps are a warning.

Turnabout In the North

THE YELLOWKNIFER
An Editorial

Tom Berger's Flying Circus was back in town recently, staging the final performance of its national tour before the B.C. justice returns to southern climes to prepare his recommendations on the proposed Mackenzie River natural gas pipeline.

Coming from one of the two groups involved in native land claims litigation with the Feds, it had to be a blockbuster. The statement President Rick Hardy of the Metis Association gave the inquiry didn't come out with the flat statement the Metis would support the pipeline. It did, however, make it absolutely clear that the Metis felt the pipeline was inevitable, that the association was working to prepare its people for the pipeline, that the Metis fully intended to go after their share of pipeline construction jobs and sub-contract work and that the Metis couldn't see any reason for further delaying pipeline construction once land claims were settled.

And anyone who can count to three could figure out that northern opposition to the pipeline had suddenly dwindled to one group of northerners, and a decided minority, at that. Coincidentally, perhaps, the same group to whom the CBC, the southern churches and various other southern northern experts have appeared to be so devoted all through the hearings.

To that point in the hearings it had been the Rapacious Rednecks vs. the Oppressed People ... and in today's world climate, the Rednecks had about as much chance of making Brownie points as Premier Ian Smith of Rhodesia at an African Summit meeting. The massive southern support group, almost to a man, woman or Ms., was enthralled with the prospect of a bright new, uncivilized North, freed from its white bondage to go back to the land and exist in tranquility as long as the rivers ran.

What a shock to be told they had rocks in their heads by some of the very people whose cause they claim to espouse!

'Doctors Tired of Protecting the Public'

By W.G. McCANDLESS

(Dr. McCANDLESS is registrar of the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons. This is a letter to the editor of The Sun.)

This is in answer to the question Protecting the Public — or the Profession? over a letter from lawyer Richard P. Gibbons in his letter which followed the acquittal of his client on a charge of practising medicine illegally, he parrots all the old clichés of the uninformed. It is, of course, a matter of surprise to me that Mr. Gibbons has seen fit to continue his brief outside of the courtroom, and thus personally identify himself with his client's cause — especially before that cause has been exhausted in the courts.

Perhaps it is time that the College of Physicians and Surgeons of B.C. let it be known that it is sick and tired of being portrayed as "the bad guys" in its efforts to protect the public. Members of the council of the college have been asking for some time, "Why are we trying to protect the public against unlicensed practitioners and quacks for which it apparently doesn't want to be protected?"

Not long ago we had an acupuncturist (with certificates from China as to his qualifications) who infected a patient's leg so badly she spent two or three weeks in St. Paul's Hospital. Another acupuncturist, also with attractive certificates attesting to his skill, punctured a patient's lung with resultant partial collapse of the lung. He simply wasn't aware that anatomically the apex of the lung rises above the collarbone.

It isn't that "great skill" is necessary to be an acupuncturist. What concerns this college is the lack of training in diagnostics and basic therapeutic safeguards.

The college's concern is not confined to acupuncture. People have cancelled appointments for heart surgery on the false hope that this could be avoided through "chelation therapy" — a treatment that allegedly removes all the "corrosion" from one's arteries.

Cancer sufferers or those who fear they may have cancer fatten the purses of the "laetrile pedlars" or the "psychic surgery" quacks. In April we got complaints about a Philippine "psychic surgeon," Thelma Imberio, whose travelling clinic did a good business in Vancouver and Burnaby for a few weeks. Search warrants were executed, and blood and tissue purportedly conjured out of the patients was seized. After a charge was laid for illegally practising medicine and one court appearance, Thelma failed to appear, and a bench warrant was out for her arrest. RCMP laboratory tests show that the blood and tissue are "bovine" in origin. Anyone for psychic surgery, chaps?

These and many others are legitimate concerns of the college, against which a constant battle is waged. The battle may well be a losing one. That substantial segment of the public which holds the mistaken or desperate belief that every pain and ailment must have an immediate cure seems determined to pour dollars into the pockets of almost anyone who claims he has the answer.

Nearly two years ago, the college suggested to the attorney general's department that the college was prepared to adopt a "buyer beware" philosophy and the government could assume the responsibility for carrying out prosecutions when indicated. Nothing came out of this suggestion. Such prosecutions are expensive.

Mr. Gibbons speaks of the fines, and how these enrich the coffers of the college and its legal counsel. Damned rubbish! The usual fines of $200 to $400 are little more than a licence to carry on business.

Many of these illegal practitioners can earn that in a day — and not pay any income tax on it! The fines paid represent a trivial fraction of the cost of the investigation and prosecutions. The attorney-general's department can take on this strenuous task without the threat of economic threat.

Mr. Gibbons, if those 734 had presented themselves to practising acupuncturists, I can guarantee you that 734 would have been treated and charged for acupuncture. Several of those, after thorough examination, were told acupuncture would only delay necessary medical or surgical treatment. It was gratifying that after undergoing surgery, some patients returned to thank the well-qualified internist who directed the clinic.

As for the old claptrap about the medical "closed shop," the best I can do is to tell Mr. Gibbons that the doctors of B.C. do not and never have felt economically threatened by unlicensed practitioners — any more than Mr. Gibbons feels economically threatened by the notaries public or commercial divorce services, etc.

The medical profession has a 4,000-year-old tradition of service to the public, of which it is justifiably proud. If society no longer wishes it to be the watchdog of what constitutes good and legitimate forms of medical practice, it should say so through its elected representatives. It will be with some relief that this thankless, expensive and onerous task is passed on to others.

Rent-a-Christmas

The things you can rent these days! You can rent a butler, a car, an island, a tuxedo, a painting, a policeman, a six-course dinner for 30. You can even rent a killer to dispose of somebody who is inconveniently living. Before long, if the pound sterling doesn't get hold of itself, you will probably be able to rent England for a weekend.

The only thing you cannot rent is a Christmas. It's a pity. Christmas is one of the high holidays of the human spirit, but it is too often dampened by seizures of panic, depression, alcoholism and breakdown, both physical and nervous. The coroner knows it as a season for suicide. A large part of that sad catalogue comes about because of a defect in Christmas which has developed since Charles Dickens first invented the contemporary model.

When Dickens produced the first sketches of the new Christmas they showed the splendor of the holiday confined to a 24-hour span. His "Pickwick Papers" Christmas was over and done within a single evening, and a sweet time was had by all. In "A Christmas Carol," he kept Scrooge going about his daily routines until midmorning of Christmas Day, yet the old man was still able to do all his shopping, lay in a goose and stuff himself at the Cratchits' by sundown.

The perfection of these Christmases lay in their refusal to camp for weeks in the celebrant's psyche. The beauty of the original Dickens Christmas was that it got on with itself and got it over with. Nowadays it persists like an onset of shingles. You spend a month getting ready for it and two weeks getting over it. This is an evil development for such a splendid holiday.

The wonder is that some entrepreneur has not diagnosed it and set up a business that will end it. The solution is obvious enough provide them with a chimney entrance by their own personalized Santa Claus. Unemployed teenagers could be given a night's work impersonating genuine Christmas carolers under the windows of renters who want something a bit more elegant.

For the truly affluent, Rent-a-Christmas might provide small cadres of paupers to shuffle past the window, suitably threadbare, at an appropriate moment, thus providing dramatic occasion for the client's additional reminder to the gathering that all should feel guilty about having so much when so many have so little. The paupers, of course, would have to be respectable high school boys willing to shuffle in the cold for a decent fee from Rent-a-Christmas. If they were the real thing, no one would feel safe about inviting them into the house for Graham crackers and milk.

Someone will object that Rent-a-Christmas "commercializes" the holiday unconsciously. In fact, it will check the worst mercantile aspects of Christmas.

A person who can pick up the telephone on Dec. 23 and say, "Send me a nice Christmas around noon tomorrow" will be a person unscarred by the embittering experience of exhausting, bankrupting weeks of trying to do it himself. He will be in splendid temper to extract the full joy of the holiday, as Scrooge was when he rose from his bed to enjoy the whole thing in a few short hours.

If Scrooge, on the other hand, had started dreaming on November 29 and spent the next four weeks being subjected to desperate sales clerks and electronically amplified "Jingle Bells," he would probably have stopped at the Cratchits on that fateful evening only long enough to smash Tiny Tim's little crutch.

Island Estuaries Damaged, UVic Oceanographer Finds

Almost every estuary on Vancouver Island has been damaged by the logging industry, reports Dr. Derek Ellis, a University of Victoria oceanographer.

New log shipment and pollution controls are helping, Ellis says, but damage from the past may take 40 to 50 years to disappear.

Ellis' findings are based on data collected on a trip around Vancouver Island in the university's research vessel John Strickland.

He reports the main damage was caused by the "rain of bark and log fibres that smother shellfish beds."

The wood particles also slowly release acids and toxins that poison most marine life, using up oxygen on the sea bed as they decompose.

In addition, Ellis says, logging in headwaters removes ground cover, making estuaries liable to sudden flooding and silting.

Rusting equipment, old wharves and other "heavy garbage" which slowly decay in the water are also a threat, Ellis reports.

He warns that estuaries are the most important part of a coastline because they are rich feeding grounds for young salmon and ground fish, assisting salmon to adapt from fresh to salt water or vice-versa.

Data found on the circumnavigation of Vancouver Island shows the Tsimshian and Mowachaht estuaries, in particular, should be protected from degradation. The Tsimshian River watershed has not yet been logged and Strathcona Park protects the Mowachaht watershed.

Pulp mills also have an effect on estuaries, Ellis reports. Almost all are located on or near an estuary and, while stricter controls have stopped frequent fish kills, pulp wastes still cause deterioration.

"We fried up some smelt we caught near the outfall at Crofton, which is one of the crofton mills on the island. They tasted just like新闻," Ellis recalled.

Ellis also took samples from some of the deep inlets, such as Kingcome Inlet.

These show that deep water parts of inlets are relatively

Mars Data Resumes

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Scientists awaken Viking's two dormant landers and orbiters today to begin sending more data back to earth, including seismology tables that may indicate Mars was shaken by a quake sometime in November.

Scientific activity on the red planet halted for a month when the sun became positioned between the earth and Mars, called the period of conjunction, because of the two planets' revolutions, closing off communication with the four spacecraft.

The orbiters will be tuned up by computer today and Tuesday, with data expected to be relayed to earth beginning Wednesday. The landers will resume their transmissions Thursday and Friday.

LOWEST RATES IN TOWN

Barber Questioned by 50 Voters

Armored Car Pact Offered

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 65 drivers and guards on strike against Brink's Canada Ltd. and Loomis Armored Car Service Ltd. since Nov. 15, will vote this week on a tentative agreement reached Friday between the companies and their union.

Ed MacIntosh, business agent for Local 351 of the Teamster Union, said Sunday that union negotiators are not happy with the tentative two-year agreement, but will reluctantly recommend its acceptance by the end of the year.

He said the vote will be held Friday and results should be known late that day.

About 50 constituents engaged Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber in a two-hour question and answer session Sunday in the first accountability session since his election last year.

"It was a kind of old fashioned town meeting approach, and I hope we have established a tradition in Victoria that may be taken up by members all over the province," he said.

Barber said he would likely hold another open meeting during the spring session of the legislature and a third following prorogation to summarize sessional achievements or failures.

The techniques should demonstrate to all members of the house the virtues of sensitivity and being a good listener, as well as how people feel about things in general, he said.

The range of topics touched on in the meeting at Fairfield United Church hall Sunday night included the high cost of food; strikes and lockouts; dental care, especially for seniors; requiring costly dentures; evictions at Alcazar Mansion; neighborhood problems; amendments to the Municipal Act and the escalation of property taxes.

Barber said he plans to introduce two private bills at the next legislative session to remind the provincial government of its campaign promise to pay its full share of local property taxes and to remove property taxes from the homes of seniors.

In Victoria, he said, the government gets away with not paying $34 million, because it gives the city only the equivalent of what 18 mills of taxation would raise, compared with the general rate to property owners of more than 45 mills.

"With the province abdicating with our money, in course the taxes go up," Barber said, noting "a disproportionate number of taxpayers are senior citizens who can least afford the increase."

He knows of two members of the government who will vote for his bills — Housing and Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis and Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf.

Barber said he hoped to compose part of the bill's wording from campaign literature put out by both men.

Why do you smoke?

If you're a smoker, you know that smoking a cigarette can be one of those rare and pleasurable private moments.

And the chances are you don't want to give up any of that.

Which brings us to Vantage.

Vantage is the cigarette for people who don't entertain the idea of giving up cigarettes because they find cigarettes too entertaining.

Vantage gives you the taste you want. The full, rich flavour of Virginia tobaccos. But the big difference is the Vantage filter. It's based on a unique new design concept that gives you so much of what you want in a cigarette, with a lot less of what you don't want.

Vantage is not a heavy drag cigarette. The smoke comes through easily, without a lot of hard work on your part.

All in all, Vantage is a unique cigarette that has real meaning for any thoughtful smoker.

Why not try a pack today.

Warning: Health and Welfare Canada advises that danger to health increases with amount smoked — avoid inhaling. 14 mg. "tar" 0.8 mg. nicotine.

Early Beatles Worth $16M... and Legal Suits

LONDON (AP) — Butcher (King Size) Taylor once turned down $50 for a tape recording he made in 1962 of a group of young, tough Liverpool boys. That tape of the Beatles may make $16 million as a double LP record to be released soon, says the London Evening News.

However, the release of the tape made in Hamburg, Germany, when the Beatles were playing for a few dollars a night, is almost certain to lead to more courtroom battles for John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo Starr.

The former members of the now-scattered Beatles are not eager for the record to be released, the newspaper said Saturday.

Those who have heard the old recording, which has been remixed to upgrade the technical quality of the tape, say it captures a raw Beatles sound rarely heard before.

The tape includes stage talk from the Beatles aimed at their German audience. John Lennon is heard bawling at the boozey, brawling crowd to "shut up," and yelling at his girl-friend of the time, a barmaid named Bettina, to bring more beer. He is also heard cracking jokes about Hitler.

Tracks on the record will probably include I Saw Her Standing There, I Love Her So, Kansas City, Long Tall Sally and Roll Over Beethoven, the newspaper said.

"It's a fantastic, fantastic tape and I think the millions of people who have followed the Beatles should be allowed to hear it," said Paul Murphy, managing director of EUK Records and one of the three men involved in the project.

The other two are Taylor and Allan Williams, the Beatles' first manager. Taylor, now a butcher in Southport, Lancashire, was a friend of the Beatles in their early days of struggle.

Five years after the group broke up, re-released Beatles singles are selling by the hundreds of thousands. The four have turned down numerous million-dollar offers to get back together.

Lennon, 36, lives in New York after fighting off an attempt by U.S. immigration authorities to deport him. McCartney, 31, who has had a number of hit records with his new group Wings, lives in Scotland. Harrison, 23, recently lost a breach of copyright case over his hit single My Sweet Lord, and Starr, 36, has been making movies.

Murphy said the biggest single-problem was proving that Taylor owned the copyright to the tape and was allowed to release it.

"Our breakthrough on that one came when he stumbled on an old letter from Brian Epstein, the Beatles' manager, saying that he would offer Mr. Taylor 20 pounds (then worth about $48) for the tape even though there does not appear to be any commercial value to the recording."

Taylor refused the offer and kept the tape, which lay in a cupboard in his home until 1973.

"I was thinking about this rock'n'roll revival going on and suddenly remembered I had this tape from the old days," said Taylor. "And I reckoned it must be worth something."

Bruins Down Selects

VANCOUVER — New Westminster Bruins of the Western Canada Hockey League used superior size and hard hitting to defeat the touring Moscow Selects 3-1 here Sunday afternoon before about 9,269 fans.

The Selects, who defeated St. Catharines, Ont., 11-2 on Thursday night, were not able to cope with the Bruins' stiff body checks and as a result their intricate passing plays were not working for them.

In the fast-skating game both sides failed to score in the first period as the Russians outshot the Bruins 5-3.

New Westminster got the game's first goal at 6:23 of the second period while short-handed with defenceman Lorry Goeckner, a pickup from Victoria Cougars, off the ice with a two-minute slashing penalty. The goal was set up by Bruins' defenceman Barry Beck, who carried the puck down the ice and took a shot at Russian goalie Sergei Babayko and at the same time took the Russian netminder out of the play. That left the net wide open and Bruins Ryan Walters simply popped the puck in to score.

The Russians retaliated just over two minutes later when Vladimir Deviatov put the puck past Bruins' Blaine Petersen from about five feet out. Petersen, who played an outstanding game in the nets, had no chance on the shot.

The teams were still tied 1-1 going into the third period and it wasn't until 12:33 that the Bruins were able to convert on many chances to score.

The winning goal was scored by Paul Hedberg on a rebound after Stan Smyl carried the puck down the ice and shot.

Then, with just 33 seconds left in the game, Bruins' Mark Lothrop fired a hard shot from about 20 feet out, beating the Russian goalie on his stick side for the insurance goal.

The Selects outshot the Bruins 33-19 and the teams split six minor penalties.

Spain Takes World Cup

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Manuel Pinero of Spain was busy thanking everybody—the tournament organizers, the press, the marshals, the drivers and the clubhouse waiters—when he paused and a shy, sly smile crossed his face.

"And I'd like to thank the United States team, too," he said. "For making double bogey and bogey on the 17th hole."

That collapse by Jerry Pate and Dave Stockton dropped the Americans out of a one-stroke lead and enabled Pinero and team-mate Seve Ballesteros to gain a two-stroke victory and give Spain its first team title in the World Cup international golf tournament.

The United States, the defending champion and winner of 13 of the 24 World Cups, was second.

"We sure as hell didn't want to lose it," said Stockton, the PGA national champion.

Pate, the U.S. Open champion, then advanced to offer his views and tripped on the first step and sprawled headlong and face-down into a canvas chair.

"Well, that just shows you what kind of week it's been," he said.

The key to the whole thing was the 17th. The United States was leading by one when they went to the tee on the par-three hole. Both caught bunkers. Stockton boogied and Pate came out 30.

Tide Clips the Rest After Slow Start

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

It was to be the "dream game" of the year.

They brought together the finest players in the nation — the Victoria Crimson Tide Reps versus The Rest of Canada — to help celebrate 100 years of rugby on Vancouver Island and to epitomize all that is exciting in the sport. They would run the ball, open it up, put on a show, they said.

Well, after a nightmare first half, the dream came true at Royal Athletic Park Saturday when both teams ran their hearts out in those magical last 20 minutes and the Tide turned back The Rest 14-6 much to the delight of 862 paying fans.

But oh, it was such a dreary start!

By half time, neither side had distinguished itself, and the Tide clung to a 3-0 lead on a penalty goal kicked by stand-off-half Cliff Yorath.

But the second half was a vastly different story.

Spurred on by some imaginative running by fullback Jim Wenman of the Tide and Spine (Spider) McTavish of Vancouver for The Rest, both teams came alive and treated the crowd to some end-to-end, thrill-a-minute rugby.

It was Wenman who set up the first try only seven minutes into the second half. He made a brilliant break and when he was tackled yards short of the line and the ball popped over, John Davies of Cowichan was rewarded for his fine following up when he dove on it.

Two minutes later, Yorath kicked a drop goal to make it 10-0 and the Tide's last points came in the final minute of the match when winger Mike Blades of James Bay intercepted, bounced back on his feet in a gymnastic way after being tackled by two players, and raced over for a classic try.

That made it 14-0 but The Rest of Canada, though tired, wasn't finished.

With the clock right on time, a Tide clearing kick by forward Bevan Grant of UVic Vikings from behind his own goal line struck a goalpost and bounced back into the end zone and the ever-alert Spider McTavish pounced on it.

In the second half, and particularly in those last 20 min-

Ackles 'Secure' As Lions' Manager

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Lions have re-confirmed Bob Ackles as general-manager of the Canadian Football League team.

Club president Doug Johnston told a news conference that Ackles had been assured by the board of directors that his position was solid.

Johnston also said that the B.C. coaching staff is under the direction of Ackles and the directors are waiting for the general manager's recommendations in that area of team operations.

Head-coach Cal Murphy has one year remaining on a two-year pact, while the contracts of assistant-coaches Dick Zornes, Bob Ryan and Tom Keele expire before the start of the 1977 season.

Ackles and Murphy were named to their present positions in August, 1975, when the board of directors fired general-manager Jack Parker and head-coach Eagle Keys. The Lions, after making the Western Football Conference playoffs in 1973 and 1974 under Parker and Keys, missed the playoffs the last two seasons.

... And Levy Returning

MONTREAL (CP) — Marvin Levy has signed a multi-year contract with Montreal Alouettes, the Canadian Football League team has announced.

Levy, coach of the club since 1973, was given the new deal despite the fact he still has a year to run on his current three-year pact.

No details were released, but one report suggested Levy had signed through the end of the 1979 season for $50,000 a year.

In four seasons with the Alouettes, Levy has a record of 32 wins, 26 losses and four ties in league play. Montreal's playoff record under Levy is 5-3, including a win in the 1974 Grey Cup.

utes, both sets of forwards gave everything they had and all of the backs, but particularly Wenman and McTavish, and Mike Alder of Ontario and Tony Bauer of Alberta for The Rest, ran till they dropped.

One more 15 minutes from the end, sparked by an interception by McTavish, was stopped by a fine tackle by Stu Barber (of James Bay) set off a chain reaction that involved just about every player in both teams.

That made it 14-0 but The Rest of Canada, though tired, wasn't finished.

Victoria's junior Tide didn't fare as well as a preliminary match against a Rest of B.C. (under-19) team at Macdonald Park. The Rest tripped Victoria's select 24-13.

Mark Iannone spanked the visitors with two tries and a conversion. Ian Leach also went over for a pair of tries while Giles Connolly counted one and Andrew Bibby booted a convert.

Grant McIntosh and Alex Wong scored tries for Victoria with Pat Trebilaw contributing the rest of the points with a penalty goal and a conversion.

The Rest of Canada side didn't fare much better Sunday. Vancouver Reps scored a try in the last minute of play to defeat The Rest 19-16.

Doug Carr scored the winning try while teammates Cliff Jones scored two and Doug Maynard added another try and a penalty goal.

Tony Barr and Barry Leigh scored first-half tries for The Rest and Rob Greig kicked a penalty and a convert.

John Billingsley kicked a 35-yard drop goal for the Selects for what appeared to be a penalty goal and a conversion.

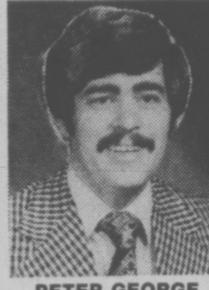

A 16-16 win with three minutes left in the game.

Car's try followed after Vancouver won the ball out of the ruck.

City Wrestler Shares Golden Harvest

SAN SALVADOR, Canada—program had a look of gold performance in the first Pan-American (20 and under) amateur junior wrestling after an overpowering performance.

championships.

Winners of Friday's freestyle team title, the Canadians, including Clark Davis of Victoria, also claimed Greco-Roman honors Saturday. With nine entrants in the freestyle, Canada won seven gold medals, a silver and one bronze.

In the Greco-Roman division, Canada's 10 entries won nine golds and a silver medal.

The 19-year-old Davis, Canada's 180-pound junior champion, won the Greco-Roman title in his division after winning a gold in Friday's freestyle. Davis is in his second year at University of British Columbia.

Mimmo Marello, 19, a Simon Fraser University student who is Canada's 149-pound champion and the only other B.C. athlete on the Canadian team, also was a double winner here.

The inaugura-l Pan-American championships attracted grapplers from eight countries.

It was one of Canada's most impressive performances in international wrestling.

Canada won the freestyle with 41 points, three more than the U.S. In the Greco-Roman competition, Canada amassed 33 points to 22 for Mexico and 20 for Panama.

George Gunowski of Toronto, Wyatte Wishart of Thunder Bay and Doug Cox of Rockwood, Ont., Canada's other double winners in addition to Davis and Marello.

Other gold medals Saturday went to Ray Takayashiki of Ottawa, Robert Pronk of Pergus, Ont., Charles Cox of Rockwood and Eric Boss of Ottawa.

Wests' Streak at Eight

Victoria West and Victoria Athletics maintained their one-two pace atop the premier division of the Vancouver Island Soccer League with victories Sunday.

Wests extended their unbeaten streak to eight matches with a 3-1 victory over Powell River Villas while Athletics stayed two points back with a 5-0 shutout over Gorge United.

In other matches, UVic Vikings blanked DaVinci 2-0, Cosmopolitan Royals tripped Oak Bay 4-2, and Gorge Molsons nudged Nanaimo City, 3-2.

Braves Bow To Burnaby

BURNABY — Burnaby Winter Club trounced Saanich Braves 16-4 in a two-game, total-goal series for the Pacific Coast title in the Wrigley tournament for midget hockey players.

Burnaby, which earned a berth in the British Columbia tourney Dec. 17 and 19 in Penticton, tripped Braves 8-3 Sunday.

Randy Wielkware scored twice for Saanich on Sunday while Jack Walls added a single. Phil Varcoe scored the lone goal for Braves on Saturday.

Burnaby outshot Saanich 33-17 Sunday and 45-18 Saturday.

Duncan Squash Enthusiasts Bid For New Courts

DUNCAN — Members of the Duncan Squash Club, who have operated out of old building on Allenby Road for the past three years, hope to stir interest tonight in a proposed new $150,000 facility.

The club has called a general meeting tonight at the Aquarius pool meeting room, starting at 8, to discuss steps of financing the proposed, three-court facility.

Duncan city council said recently it would allow the club to relocate in Rotary Park if provided members could obtain the necessary financing.

Gati Takes Over For Ailing Conductor

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Without the distraction and the dominating presence of a guest artist or ensemble, Victoria Symphony Orchestra stood solely on its own merits in this weekend's pair of concerts and came off well.

In the absence through illness of the scheduled guest conductor, Utah's Maurice Abravanel, Maestro Laszlo Gati was on the podium, assured and communicative as ever.

First part of the program is devoted to American composers as a tribute to the United States bicentennial and in effect is the more successful of the two halves, performance of the Schubert ninth symphony which fills the second half, revealing a few untidy details balanced to some extent by admirably played, especially by brass and woodwinds. Gati reaches toward the poetry inherent in the work but it is not conveyed with full satisfaction in performance.

The program opens spiritedly—with Morton Gould's brilliant symphonic treatment of the familiar When Johnny Comes Marching Home. A song of America's early wars, it seems to epitomize the sturdy American spirit and confidence, is richly orchestrated and was rendered with a fine flourish by Gati and the orchestra.

Each section of the orchestra—percussion, brass and woodwinds outstandingly—revealed degrees of virtuosity in the performance.

The concert is repeated tonight at 8 at the Royal Theatre.

The strings made a moving and satisfying contribution to the program with the performance of Samuel Barber's Adagio which was dedicated by Gati to the late Benjamin Britten who died last week. A lovely and haunting work that possesses at the same time, great dignity and passion, it was performed with genuine feeling and a compelling sense of climax and mood.

Aaron Copland's Billy the Kid was originally written as a ballet and later developed by the composer into a symphonic suite. It demands considerable virtuosity from all sections of the orchestra and the challenge was met with energy and style at Sunday's concert.

This is music however, that is in no way facile or dependent merely on pyrotechnics. Its Open Prairie and Street in a Frontier Town are filled with atmosphere and color, the instrumentation providing

NON-STOP TO AUSTRALIA

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Pan American Airways 747-SP jetliner has completed an inaugural roundtrip service that included the longest non-stop passenger flight in history—a 7,500-mile journey between Australia and San Francisco.

A spokesman for Pan American Airways said the airline's 747-SP made the flight from Sydney to San Francisco Sunday in 13 hours and 14 minutes.

The spokesman said the service, which had the first half of its inaugural run Wednesday from San Francisco to Sydney, will be operated once a week.

'Think Tank' Urges Growth Changes

The newspaper says the report, by a team of 25 researchers from McGill University and the University of Montreal, followed an 18-month, $195,000 study of the future for 14 federal government departments and agencies.

Gatina has called a news conference for Tuesday in Montreal, presumably to announce the report's contents.

The Globe and Mail says the group "firmly urges the government to steer the nation toward what futurists call 'the conservator society,' and recommends dependence on renewable resources, recycling technology and durability of goods."

Kenya Celebrates

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Kenya marked the 13th anniversary of its independence Sunday with an air show by U.S. Marine Corps jets and a proclamation granting freedom to 10,000 prisoners.

President Jomo Kenyatta said the inmates, one third of Kenya's prison population, would be set free today and he warned them not to run afoul of the law again. Most of the prisoners were held on minor criminal charges.

In ceremonies earlier, marine corps jets joined the Kenyan Air Force in a flyover over Nairobi to show America's growing commitment to this East African nation.

Tobacco Firm Cancels Awards

VANCOUVER (CP) — Imperial Tobacco Ltd. is ending its sponsorship of Cash Environmental awards, first inaugurated in 1968 as the White Owl Conservation awards.

One of this year's winners, Gary Gallon of Vancouver, executive director of SPEC (the Scientific Pollution and Environment Control Society), said he is sorry the awards are being cancelled.

"Smoking is as bad a pollution or contaminant as there is around," Gallon said, "but we'll take money from any company around."

Murder Charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Real Carrier, 30, was charged with murder Sunday after a man was found stabbed to death in a downtown hotel room.

Joseph John Beruschi, 65, was found stabbed and decapitated early Sunday.

Parrots Stolen

VANCOUVER (CP) — Parrots and cockatoos worth an estimated $3,000 were stolen from a pet store Saturday night. Thieves freed the less expensive birds and put all the gerbils and hamsters in the iguana cage, giving its occupants a hefty late-night snack. Two parrots were recovered a short distance from the store.

Police Injured

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two policemen received minor injuries in a brief hostage-taking incident Sunday. Police said a man who had just been released from a mental hospital held a woman at her apartment for a short time before surrendering.

PCB Not Toxic

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP) — The amount of polychlorinated biphenols (PCB) found in Creek drinking water is far below toxic levels, Cariboo Health Unit medical officer Dr. Phillip Long said Friday.

Long said he reviewed tests of local water which were ordered last week by federal and provincial authorities following the disclosure that a number of electrical capacitors containing the poisonous compound had been buried at a B.C. Hydro station.

Tricks Increase

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the University of B.C. law students' association says competition for high marks in a tight job market has created a cut-throat attitude among law students.

Mark Dvor told a panel discussion at the meeting of the provincial council of the B.C. branch of the Canadian Bar Association Saturday that there has been an increase in tricks such as students stealing each other's notes and hiding reference books so others can't use them.

Killed in Fight

VANCOUVER (CP) — Howard Chan, 45, a meat hanger, died early Sunday following a fist fight with a fellow worker Friday.

Survives Fall

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police said a 14-month-old child suffered only minor injuries in a fall from the fourth floor of a west end apartment Sunday morning.

5 in Brawl

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five persons were charged with causing a disturbance following a brawl Saturday night at a Coal Harbor wharf. Police said about 85 young persons were just leaving on a harbor cruise when a drunken fight erupted.

Fingerprinting Protest Vetoed

SEWER JOB CELEBRATED

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — After laying 55 miles of sewer pipe in record time, 50 men from the sewer crew celebrated at a party thrown by their bosses Friday at the posh Glenegleas Golf Club.

They saved the municipality $250,000 by doing the job in 2½ years instead of the five it was supposed to take.

A total of 220 workers, wives and municipal employees attended the party, drinking toasts to the men who slung together 320 feet of pipe in one day, breaking all existing West Vancouver statistics.

Grants Called Illogical

VANCOUVER (CP) — Northland Navigation president Lou Fleming said Sunday Transport Minister Otto Lang's decision to provide Coast Ferries with a $300,000 subsidy while chopping a $4 million-subsidy to Northland amounts to inconsistency through incompetence.

Coast Ferries will provide service to about 100 remote B.C. coastal communities through the winter.

Captain Fleming said there isn't any logic to the decision to support one service and reject the other.

Coast Ferries president Bill New said the subsidy not only means continued operation but will result in a 20-per-cent drop in rates by the company.

Last week, Coast Ferries said it would have to close down at the end of this month unless it received a subsidy.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Resources Board chairman Harry Rankin said Saturday that Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm has vetoed a board decision to go to court to test the legality of fingerprinting juveniles.

Vander Zalm confirmed that he has vetoed the board's decision. He said the government won't spend taxpayer's money to veto what some argue is an effective way of curbing juvenile delinquency.

The minister said he understands the Vancouver police don't fingerprint juveniles as a matter of practice but have carried it out on a number of occasions.

He said if the resources board feels so strongly about it, they're welcome to go to court as individuals.

Vander Zalm said the rights if juveniles aren't being denied on a large scale and that the issue involves a few juveniles who are continually getting into trouble.

The resources board has said the rights of juveniles are being violated by fingerprinting.

Rankin said he wants to take the fingerprinting issue to the B.C. Supreme Court but he can't find a parent or juvenile interested in being the test case.

He said he would accept Vander Zalm's challenge himself and take the matter to court "as soon as I find a client."

Rankin said he was forced to drop a B.C. Supreme Court damage action on behalf of the mother of a 15-year-old Vancouver boy because the woman declined to go ahead with the case.

He said the Identification of Criminals Act permits the fingerprinting and photographing of juveniles only after they have been charged with a criminal offence.

"What's happening is that juveniles are being fingerprinted in cases where no charges at all are laid," he said. "That's against the law, even for adults."

Oregon Alimony Seen as Cure

VANCOUVER (CP) — Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm says that if a system used in Oregon state for collecting alimony and maintenance payments from errant spouses was applied in B.C., it could dissuade some couples from breaking up.

Vander Zalm made the remark Sunday after returning home Friday from Oregon where he studied that state's approach to support payments.

"If I lived in Oregon and I left my wife and kids, the courts would assess support for my family that I would have to provide," he said. "If I failed to pay, the state would support the family and would make a claim or charge against me the moment I sold or bought property."

He said Oregon's system is effective.

"It avoids confrontation between individuals and, possibly, avoids a number of marriage break-ups."

Vander Zalm said he would continue to communicate with Oregon officials before giving final consideration for a similar program in B.C.

The minister also said he has received positive feedback from many young people regarding his proposal to make premarital counselling mandatory in B.C.

Ferry Workers Cut

VANCOUVER (CP) — Peter Marshall, a spokesman for the ferry workers component of the B.C. Government Employees Union, said Sunday the latest quarterly management report on safety shows that there have been even more severe cutbacks on operating staff than originally predicted.

Marshall said the report indicates there are 865 fewer workers handling operational duties now than at the same time last year.

He said Transport Minister Jack Davis' prediction that

Rankin said he wants to take the fingerprinting issue to the B.C. Supreme Court but he can't find a parent or juvenile interested in being the test case.

Davis could help the unemployment picture by putting either one of two vessels now sitting idle on runs serving northern communities, Marshall said.

HARD OF HEARING?

Sound is delivered to ear by plastic tube.

Open ear process developed especially for nerve deafness

The Clarifier CROS instrument has been designed to make it possible for men, women and children with nerve deafness to find new hearing happiness.

This open ear process, with just a tiny plastic tube leading into your ear, may be what you have been looking for. If you have been dissatisfied with your hearing aid or have hesitated to wear one because it looks and feels clumsy or uncomfortable, Dahlberg offers you a practical alternative with the new Clarifier CROS.

The Clarifier CROS is not a bone conduction aid and is not confined to eyeglass styles. The CROS principle is also available in behind-the-ear models.

Leigh Given 2-1 Margin By Sidney

Sidney Ald. Dick Leigh easily won election Saturday as mayor of Sidney, beating opponent Eric Sherwood by more than a two-to-one margin.

Leigh received 1,107 votes and Sherwood, a North Saanich alderman, got 538.

The election became necessary when Mayor Peter Malcolm announced in October that he was resigning midway through his two-year term to work for a brokerage firm in Vancouver.

There were 4,189 eligible voters and 39 per cent turned out to cast their ballots.

Malcolm was also Sidney's representative on the Capital Region Board. Sherwood and Sidney Ald. Jerry Tregaskis were vying for that seat and because of Sherwood's loss, Tregaskis becomes the new representative.

Leigh, 64, a retired Air Canada shops superintendent, said today "I'm just catching my breath — glad that it's all over."

He said one immediate task he has is to prepare his inaugural speech for Jan. 4 when he is officially sworn in as mayor.

Also keeping him busy will be the appointment of a member-at-large from Sidney to sit on the Saanich Peninsula water commission and co-operating with North Saanich in setting up a recreation centre committee.

He said Tregaskis will be Sidney council's representative on the recreation committee as well as the water commission, which will begin operating Jan. 1.

The commission, comprised of representatives from North Saanich, Central Saanich and Sidney and the three existing water districts, will be responsible for local distribution of water.

Leigh said today he does not agree with Malcolm's charge that Sherwood was "an outsider" and a "puppet of North Saanich Mayor Paul Grieve."

"He (Sherwood) is just as much his own man as I am," Leigh said.

Gunman Silenced By Clerk

A desk clerk at the Royal Oak Inn in Saanich, facing a gun-wielding bandit early today, may have prevented a robbery by his action — or lack of it.

When confronted by the robber, clerk Richard Waldie, 29, froze and ignored the bandit's gestures to put money into a canvas money bag.

The robber stood there for a moment or two and then fled empty-handed. No words were exchanged.

Saanich police were called in shortly after the 6 a.m. attempted robbery. They are looking for a suspect wearing a black leather motorcycle jacket and carrying a blue-barrelled revolver believed to be .32-calibre.

The robber had a ski mask pulled over his face at the time. He is about 5 feet, 10 inches tall and 150 pounds.

Before an NIP agreement is reached, the city is supposed to review zoning of the area to determine if municipal action will be necessary to ensure stability, Blencoe said.

He said a down-zoning bylaw has been on the books since last January and council has done nothing about it. As a result, widespread demolition to make way for multiple-dwelling buildings has taken place.

The city has not provided any zoning to ensure stability," he said.

Blencoe says the FCA does not want every old house in the area designated as a heritage structure, but it is angry because the houses being destroyed are good, solid structures, not derelicts.

"It's difficult enough to find good, affordable housing in this city," he says.

Passenger Donna Patterson, 17, was taken to Victoria General Hospital and treated for minor injuries. The accident is still under investigation by Colwood RCMP.

A Time for Canadians to Hang Tough

UNTIL A VERY FEW YEARS ago, most English-speaking Canadians took it for granted that Canada had settled into its permanent mould. We were a band of 10 provinces and two territories snugly joined by Confederation, and such we would remain.

True, one or another of the partners showed occasional signs of restiveness:

It wasn't hard to find an unreconstructed Newfoundland who wondered if his province had made a mistake when it entered our union. The West blamed the East — which largely ignore it — for inequitable freight rates. Then there was Quebec, released from the Duplessis tyranny and searching for answers to problems peculiarly its own.

But all this was no more than the healthy yearning to be expected in a still-young country. We could rest easy in the comfortable assurance that

The Fernwood Community Association is consulting lawyers over the weekend demolition of 11 homes to make way for a condominium project.

The homes were bulldozed in the Fernwood area in what the FCA believes was a violation of Neighborhood Improvement Program guidelines.

The association wants to know if the city disregarded the guidelines by having the homes demolished rather than preserved and upgraded.

At the city's request, Fernwood was designated an NIP area and the city was given $750,000 to undertake improvement projects.

Robin Blencoe, vice-president of the FCA, says the city failed to live up to the terms of NIP when it allowed the demolition of the 11 back-to-back houses in the 1000-block Pembroke and Princess.

Part of the NIP contract reads: "The program is not designed to be used for wholesale demolition of deteriorated buildings and the subsequent construction of massive new building projects. The intent is rather to conserve and rehabilitate the housing stock."

Blencoe also accused the city of procrastinating on down-zoning changes which has allowed for the four large apartment or condominium projects in Fernwood.

Before an NIP agreement is reached, the city is supposed to review zoning of the area to determine if municipal action will be necessary to ensure stability, Blencoe said.

He said a down-zoning bylaw has been on the books since last January and council has done nothing about it. As a result, widespread demolition to make way for multiple-dwelling buildings has taken place.

Savings Up to $12M In School Plan Report

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

Greater Victoria School District trustees have been presented with five options which could save $1 million to $12 million over the next four years.

The options are contained in the 12th report from the district's planning council, headed by assistant superintendent Dr. John Wiens.

The council recommends trustees not commit themselves to any of the options before Oct. 31, 1977, when some basic principles and long-term policies have been established.

However, in the meantime, the council recommends that before Jan. 31, the board make decisions for change in some areas which need immediate attention.

The council says the options would top $1 million to $12 million off the $20-million capital expense proposal submitted earlier this year to the education department.

All the options are based on a projected enrolment of 23,190 by 1981, down from the present total of 28,142.

All the options are based on a projected enrolment of 23,190 by 1981, down from the present total of 28,142.

The first option, called the convenience option, would save $1 million. It would include all present plans with the exception of covered play areas and two new schools — Edgewood and Roy Road — which the report says will not be needed.

According to this plan, almost all buildings would remain in operation resulting in an excess capacity of 8,000 by 1981.

It is referred to as a convenience option because it avoids proposals which would be difficult to implement for political reasons and because of administrative inconvenience," the report says.

The second, the so-called middle school option, calls for reorganization into three types of schools — kindergarten to Grade 5, Grades 6 to 9 and 9 to 12.

The middle schools would occupy existing junior secondary buildings.

This plan calls for the closure of the following schools by 1981: Cloverdale (old building), Tolmie (old building), Willows (old portion).

The council recommends that Sundance be relocated to the Mt. View buildings now occupied by Camouson College.

The report says this move has the overwhelming support of the parents and staff and is in keeping with plans supported in principle by the board several years ago.

Hard to Love Ugly Daughter

DEAR ABBY: I know I should be grateful that my 13-year-old daughter is healthy and bright, but she is so ugly that it's hard to love her. I am often cruel to her and then I feel guilty because I know it's not her fault that she's not better looking.

Both my husband and I are fairly attractive. We've done everything to help her—teeth straightened, good hair cut, nice clothes, treatment for acne, etc., but she's still a very homely girl.

I find myself bitter and resentful of my friends' attractive children because my daughter is so ugly. What can I do? — FEELING GUILTY.

DEAR CRUEL: If you condition your love on the cosmetic qualities of your daughter you are the ugly one, only your ugliness doesn't show.

I regard your frank confession as a cry for help. Get into therapy before your "bright and healthy" daughter suffers serious psychological damage from your cruelty and sadly twisted feelings.

DEAR ABBY: My husband went on a 10-day business trip recently and he wrote me three letters. He addressed the first one to "Mary Smith," the second to "Mrs. Mary Smith," and the third to "Ms. Mary Smith."

I have a friend who studies psychology and she told me that my husband's addressing me as he did — carefully avoiding using "Mrs. John Smith" — was his way of "defining" me.

I should add that when my husband returned from the trip he was as affectionate and loving as ever, and he certainly didn't "de-wife" me then.

What do you think of my friend's theory? — PERPLEXED.

DEAR PERPLEXED: Not much. And if I were you I would "de-friend" her.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for four years, but my husband still maintains the bachelor apartment he

Individual Games Best

STORRS, Conn. (AP) Children who show delinquent tendencies get more out of individual sports, such as weightlifting, backpacking and bicycling than from team-oriented ones, says an athletics instructor here.

Dr. Andrew Yiannakis, assistant professor of physical education at University of Connecticut, said organized athletic programs have little appeal to potential delinquents because they represent "just another classroom."

Instead of competitive games with rigid structures, Yiannakis recommends that children who show delinquent tendencies be directed to individual activities that offer a "thrill component."

He based his conclusion on a personal study of 66 boys aged 11 who were enrolled in a summer youth sports program.

Storm Windows Easy

To Install Yourself

By A. J. HAND
(c) 1976, Popular Science

Does your home have storm windows? If not, you're probably throwing money out the window. You can cut the heat loss through any single-glazed window in your home roughly in half simply by installing a storm window.

In the oil-heated home, the storm window will pay for itself in less than five years, and in the electrically-heated home, less than two years.

Installing aluminum windows is so easy you should do the job yourself. You'll probably find you can fit any double-hung window (the kind that slides up and down) in your home with an aluminum storm in less than 15 minutes. Here's how:

Start by measuring your windows inside the exterior trim as shown in the sketch. Then go buy your windows. Most likely, you'll find storms to fit your windows right in stock at your local home centre or lumberyard. In some cases, you'll have to buy your storms slightly oversize and trim them. This is easy because the aluminum frames are designed for just such an eventuality.

Next, drill for and drive the screw in the hole opposite the first screw you drove. Make sure the storm window frame is square before you go, though. The frames are a little flimsy before they are fastened to the house. If you screw them in place out of square, the windows won't slide freely in their channels.

The first two screws are broken off narrow strips of metal for a neat fit. In rare cases you'll have to custom order your storm windows, and you'll have to pay a few dollars more.

While you're buying your windows, pick up some caulk and a caulking gun. One cartridge of caulk should handle about six windows.

As you'll probably have to work from a ladder, you can save a lot of climbing by getting organized. Round up a screwdriver, a small push drill with a bit the right size for the screws that come with the windows, and your caulk gun. Stick the tools and screws in your pockets, and climb the ladder with your windows in one hand (they are quite light in weight).

Buy two foundation bases: one with moisture and one with a water base. Color-key them in a shade matching your skiff-top. Use the moisture make-up on the dry areas. It will smooth on evenly.

Use the water base or "oil-free" make-up on the central areas of the face. It will not add oil and will help to prevent clogging of pores.

Your entire make-up will stay fresh-looking much longer.

caulk. Now you can slip a screw onto the end of the screwdriver and the caulk will hold it there. While you're still holding the window in place with your left hand, drive the screw with your right. That screw will hold the window in place, so you can now let go with your left hand.

Next, drill for and drive the screw in the hole opposite the first screw you drove.

Make sure the storm window frame is square before you go, though. The frames are a little flimsy before they are fastened to the house. If you screw them in place out of square, the windows won't slide freely in their channels.

They are scored to let you break off narrow strips of metal for a neat fit. In rare cases you'll have to custom order your storm windows, and you'll have to pay a few dollars more.

White you're buying your windows, pick up some caulk and a caulking gun. One cartridge of caulk should handle about six windows.

As you'll probably have to work from a ladder, you can save a lot of climbing by getting organized. Round up a

drill with a bit the right size for the screws that come with the windows, and your caulk gun. Stick the tools and screws in your pockets, and climb the ladder with your windows in one hand (they are quite light in weight).

When you get in position, rest the window on your feet and let it lean against the ladder. Run a thin bead of caulk around the window frame as shown in the sketch. Slip the window into place and hold it with one hand. Make sure the window is centred in its opening. Take the push drill and drill a pilot hole in the window frame, right through the hole already punched in the storm window frame.

The first hole you drill should be at the centre of either one of the storm window side rails.

EXCHANGE SOUGHT

NANAIMO — A major-community college on Florida's Atlantic coast has asked Malaspina College here to take part in an ambitious student-faculty exchange program next year.

The request came from Brevard Community College in Cocoa, Fla., for an exchange beginning in 1977. Dr. Max King, Brevard president, made the request to Malaspina president Dr. Carl Opgard during a recent conference of Canadian community colleges in Ottawa.

Earlier, Dr. Bob Breuer of Brevard's international development departments spent two days in Nanaimo outlining broad details of the plan to students, faculty and staff.

CAIRO — Egyptian officials feel they need tangible results soon from their Middle East peace offensive.

Knowing it will take months to achieve a comprehensive peace settlement, they are asking the United States to bring Israel to a peace conference that includes the Palestinians by March.

This would be a diplomatic breakthrough that would show more radical Arab and Palestinian leaders that the moderate Egyptian-Syrian-Saudi-Arab foreign policy is paying off, senior foreign ministry officials said Saturday.

The details of the peace settlement could be worked out over a long period of time once the Geneva peace conference is convened. But the more assembling of the conference with Palestinian paricipation is an important symbolic gesture, the Egyptians feel.

Deputy Premier and Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi will carry this message next week to the United States ambassador here, Herman F. Etils.

Agreeing to allow the Palestinians to participate as full members of the Geneva peace talk will entail radical changes in both American and Israeli foreign policy. Both nations have said they will never agree to allow the Palestinians to take part as a separate group, only as members of other Arab delegations.

But, said a senior member of the Egyptian foreign ministry, "The change is not a substantive step. It's just procedural."

The Egyptians even have hinted at some ways to get around this problem. Having a combined Arab delegation with Palestinians included as full members, for example, instead of separate Egyptian, Syrian, Jordanian and Palestinian delegations. The Palestinians, however, are balkant at this possibility.

Despite all the problems, Egyptians are adamant about wanting the United States to exert its influence on Israel to get the Geneva conference started.

If the Americans fail to act soon after President-elect Jimmy Carter takes office Jan. 20, the Egyptians feel the current peace offensive may waver under pressure from Arab radicals.

Continuing Middle East Peace Relies on Sadat

Washington Post

CAIRO — The illness of President Anwar Sadat, which obliged him to postpone a state visit to Egypt by President Hafez Assad of Syria, came as an uneasy reminder of how much the prospects for peace and stability in the Middle East depend on those two men remaining in power.

The death or ouster of either, in the opinion of many experts on regional affairs, would result in incalculable turmoil, disrupting not only their own countries but the regional balance of power and political relationships that have been carefully developed over several years.

Sadat, who will be 58 on Christmas Day, is not believed to be seriously ill. Both he and Assad are considered likely to remain in office for some time to come.

Egypt has had only two presidents since the overthrow of the monarchy in 1952 — Sadat and his predecessor, Gamal Abdel Nasser, who died suddenly in 1970. But the durability of Assad as leader of Syria is a rarity in that turbulent country, where political upheaval used to be a way of life.

In fact, however, Assad is part of an emerging pattern in the Arab world, here the days of revolving door governments are in the past. It is now possible to make with some confidence calculations about the Arab states that are based on the assumption that individual leaders or regimes will remain in power, a draw-curred over the past few years.

Throughout the turbulent years from the end of Second World War to beginning of the 1970s, when many of the Arab states first gained independence, the Arab world was notorious for sudden shifts of leadership, coups d'état, civil wars, assassinations and abrupt reversals of national policy.

That pattern has changed.

Stable regimes with ongoing policies, legitimized by long gevity, have become the rule and not the exception. The region remains highly volatile but it is not the way it was a decade ago.

Since the Arab-Israeli war of 1973, only two of the 20 Arab States, Saudi Arabia and North Yemen, have undergone changes of leadership by coup or assassination and only in North Yemen was there a major shift of national policy as a result.

A coast guard spokesman said the spill was widely dispersed with oil washing ashore on Guemes Island and depositing a sheen on beaches on the south side of Cypress Island and on Vendovi Island.

The cause of the spill has not been determined.

OIL SPILL FOUND ON SAN JUANS

SEATTLE (AP) — A 150-gallon spill of heavy oil deposited pollution on at least three islands in the San Juan chain the U.S. Coast Guard said Sunday.

Gonorrhea is considered an epidemic disease in North America. About 50,000 new cases were reported in Canada in 1975.

The new strain of gonorrhea is frightening military health officers at the two large U.S. military installations at Manila in the Philippines.

Six months ago there were no known cases of the new strain, the doctor said, but in the three months from August to October 410 GIs from the bases contracted it. This is about 15 per cent of all gonorrhea cases reported on the two bases during that period. November figures have not been compiled yet.

The new strain first showed up in the United States in April, when a GI who had left Clark a week before was discovered with the disease.

The three cases in Canada were found in Nova Scotia, British Columbia and Ontario. The new gonorrhea germ has been identified among 31 patients in the United States.

The antibiotic spectinomycin is the most effective drug against the new strain, the publication says.

However, health authorities are urging doctors not to use it as the major defense against all gonorrhea for fear that it will lose its effectiveness.

Mobile Unit Tracks Upper Pollution

By AB KENT

Times Staff

A new mobile unit for atmospheric soundings at B.C. airports has been obtained by the environment department.

Environmental meteorologist Jack Emsley, of the Atmospheric Environment Services in Vancouver, said the device will help weather forecasters and pilots understand and allow for the problems of air pollution and winds encountered by aircraft.

The unit consists of a trailer and one-ton truck containing instruments for measuring atmospheric variations up to about 4,000 feet which are sent back to earth by a minisonde.

Emsley said the miniature version of the radio-sonde — the measuring device — considerably cheaper than the conventional type used for high-altitude soundings.

Because of supply problems the mini-sondes themselves have not yet arrived although the ground unit has been in Vancouver for a month.

Minisondes — carried aloft by balloons — cost about $10.50 each and are expendable.

As they rise through the atmosphere they send back radio signals that produce essentially a temperature profile which may be interpreted into specific weather information.

A disadvantage of the mini-sonde method is that it takes a crew of three and each shot is of brief duration. Nor does it track turbulence caused by the wings of larger aircraft and hazard to other planes.

Emsley said the unit would be useful in problem situations or to underline the need for continuous monitoring of temperature inversions, wind shears, the height of fog, air pollution, and aircraft wakes.

In England, the Rolls Royce aero engine complex at Derby uses an echo sounder monitor to warn of low inversions that would hinder dispersal of engine fumes.

Also in the UK, the department of industry is using one to assess the effect on pollution levels in the Firth Valley as industry expands.

The UK meteorological office is considering an echo sounder for use at airports, particularly to measure fog.

Emsley said a similar move has been contemplated by the environment department for its west coast region, probably for installation at Vancouver on an experimental basis.

The acoustic sounder provides a continuous profile which can be recorded visually on a paper tape.

It operates like its ocean-going counterpart which has been used for years by navigators and fishermen to detect shoals of fish and pick out safe channels.

The bulk of Canadian work in atmospheric sounding by acoustical methods has been done at the University of Toronto, much of it by Dr. Richard Bennett, now of the provincial environment and land use committee secretariat.

Dr. Bennett built a sounder while working on his thesis.

At the time, it cost more than the $8,000 price of the commercial models now available.

Bennett said he improvised to develop an antenna, shield, loudspeaker, horn and modified parabolic microwave reflector.

In operation, the acoustic sounder emits a loud sound that is focused and reflected by the horn and parabolic reflector in a vertical beam that travels aloft until it reaches a layer that scatters and reflects it back to earth.

The scattered impulse is then picked up by a receiver incorporated with the reflector. Part of the signal may continue through to a higher layer of stratification before it is reflected back.

Both layers would appear separately on the recording tape.

The subject is comparatively old, but Bennett said it had not been well researched. A few scientists dabbled in acoustic sounding after the Second World War, with no significant work until the late 1960's in Australia.

Acoustic sounding in the atmosphere then appeared to be a useful technique and further work was done in the UK and the United States.

Between 100 and 150 atmospheric sounders have been de-

RED LAKE, Ont. (CP) — Four persons from the Red Lake area and two from Kelowna are scheduled to appear here in Ontario provincial court Dec. 15 on drug-related charges.

The charges were laid as the result of an investigation that included the Oct. 29 seizure by an RCMP joint forces drug squad of about $5,000 worth of cannabis.

James A. White and Colleen O'Rourke, both of Kelowna, and Johann Peter Hierzer of Red Lake are charged with conspiracy to traffic in a narcotic. Hierzer is also charged with trafficking in a narcotic and possession of a narcotic for the purpose of trafficking.

Glacier Is Frozen Tomb

LONGMIRE, Wash. (AP) — Thirty years ago Friday, a Marine Corps transport plane flying a blizzard was blown off course and smashed into a cliff on Mt. Rainier.

The South Tahoma glacier since has been a frozen tomb encasing the 32 servicemen, despite the occasional rumors that the ice mass will someday surrender its dead.

The plane was one of six bearing Marines from San Diego to Seattle. One of the planes made it through, despite howling December gales.

Four others turned back and landed at Portland. The sixth, unsuccessfully fighting to climb above 9,000 feet, drifted fatally off course.

The following July, a few tattered bits of wreckage and personal belongings were found to confirm the tragedy.

The families of the victims placed a bronze plaque in their memory on a large rock at Round Pass, from which the crash area can be seen.

The glacier crawls along at 500 feet a year, and six years ago it was speculated that the movement could bring crash debris to the nose of the ice mass in another year. So far, nothing from the crash has reappeared since it sank into the snow and ice thirty years ago.

Some glaciologists have surrendered their victims. The Grindewald in Switzerland claimed two climbers in 1870, and their bodies were found nearly 80 years later at its terminus.

But glaciologists don't hold

Cuban Movie Portrays CIA Plot on Island

HAVANA (Reuters) — A Cuban campaign against alleged CIA activity on the island includes a new film playing to packed audiences in Havana.

The action thriller, Patty-Candela, shows how the Cuban intelligence service foiled a CIA plot to murder Defense Minister Raul Castro and launch American intervention against the Castro government.

Director Rogelio Paris says the film is not fiction but an accurate account of a plot 15 years ago, as gathered from confessions of captured CIA agents.

The plan, code-named Patty, was to shoot Raul, Premier Fidel Castro's younger brother, during a public rally at Santiago de Cuba, 600 miles east of Havana.

At the same time, another group was to stage a fake shelling of the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, near Santiago, and to shell a Cuban artillery battery in order to start a battle and provoke large-scale military intervention.

Years ago, as gathered from confessions of captured CIA agents.

The Cubans say the plan was meant to be the CIA's revenge for the failure of the Bay of Pigs invasion a few months earlier.

The film is no sensational disclosure. Operation Patty was denounced as "clever and macabre" by the late Ernesto (Che) Guevara at a conference of the Organization of American States in 1961.

But the November premiere of Patty-Candela coincided with a stepped-up campaign against the CIA, which, Cubans charge, took a direct part in the sabotage bombing of a Cuban airliner last month. The plane, leased from Air Canada, was on a scheduled flight from Barbados to Jamaica. It crashed into the Caribbean killing all 73 aboard.

Rallying more than one million people in Havana's Revolution Square, Castro accused the CIA of direct involvement and called off the 1973 anti-hijacking pact with Washington.

In the film, a CIA agent, Alfredo Izquierdo, code-named Tito, lands clandestinely to set up the operation which he says has the backing of the U.S. government, keeping in close touch with the CIA through a radio transmitter.

Couriers and agents travel freely from one tip of the island to the other, jump over barbed wire into Guantanamo to make contact with American authorities and jump back with smuggled weapons.

They also make contact with dissident officers in the Cuban army who are soon given major roles in the plot. Everything seems set for Operation Patty to be carried out.

This is when Operation Candela (Candela, the Cuban counter-plan, starts. The dissident officers turn out to be Cuban agents, and in a few feet of film, all conspirators are arrested or shot.

According to official data, more than 200 counter-revolutionaries, including 16 CIA agents, were detained in Operation Candela.

Only one, "Captain" Ramos, managed to get away aboard a stolen boat, only to die when the boat was blown up by a Cuban navy launch outside the Bay of Santiago.

Cubans, when they leave the movie house, are reminded that Plan Patty was not fiction. Huge posters along the streets denounce CIA assassination (murders).

Castro told them in an October speech that the time of plots and double-agents may not be over. He said a CIA agent had passed information to the Cuban government for the last 10 years.

Twist of Dial Ends Teachers

EDMONTON (CP) — Steven Hunka feels he can put 5,000 teachers out of work with the twist of a dial.

But he says he'll restrain himself for now, with a little help from the provincial government.

Dr. Hunka, 43, is co-ordinator of educational research services with the University of Alberta education faculty. His specialty is computer-assisted instruction, a field in which he recently won an award in educational research from the Canadian Educational Association.

"We've taken the position that the machine should take over the bulk of instruction in the classroom," said the slender, intense man with graying sideburns.

To that end, he has helped set up computer-assisted courses in electronics, French, pharmacology, mathematics, food sciences, reading, research design and statistics.

Dr. Hunka said the major advantage of computer-assisted instruction is that it gives a teacher an accurate assessment of his instructional impact.

Rather than relying on the occasional test and quiz, combined with a lot of intuition, the teacher can scientifically assess a student's progress in punctuation or problem-solving every step of the way.

"It forces the educationist to put his money where his mouth is. Here the computer monitors every move that the child makes, every response the child does. Drill and practice is no longer a uniquely human kind of thing."

Dr. Hunka's department has drawn up a program proposal that calls for installation of a new $2-million computer at the university.

Hooked into its data bank and program system would be 200 terminals worth another $2 million and scattered over a wide area, including some in the Northwest Territories. Teachers would be brought to Edmonton, instructed, then sent home with terminals.

Dr. Hunka said Alberta's educational priorities now are focused in human-intensive areas. Computers which are used are found at the administrative level, not the grassroots where the action is.

"Seven years ago I predicted there'd be terminals in the classroom by now. I was wrong."

He said pupils who use computers-assisted programs don't complain about dehumanization of education . . . "they complain about the lack of course material . . . they complain about the lack of educational strategies."

Dr. Hunka isn't all that optimistic about computers and their future in Canadian society.

Canadians are fixated at the assembly-line level" in their understanding of automation while technological growth continues to outpace the dominant social, economic and psychological structures.

There's some justification, he said, to fears of computer-initiated unemployment among teachers, postal workers and others.

"If someone in power came to me and said, 'We can get rid of 5,000 teachers with your machines,' I guess I wouldn't do it."

Perfect Gift ... Dirt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
RANGOON (Reuters) — You don't have to be a millionaire to splurge on something utterly extravagant this Christmas. Retailers are offering a range of impractical goods at almost every price level.

Here is a sampling of items, from under $10 to over $500, for shoppers who want to feel like big spenders, but don't have $10,000 for a dollhouse from F. A. O. Schwarz or $11,750 for Neiman-Marcus' special his-and-hers gift — a pair of 6-month-old buffalo calves, delivered anywhere in the United States.

Designer dirt. A bag of dirt — the kind you put your plants in — for only $9. The elegant gimmick? The bag comes with initials — intertwined "Ds" — created to look like those on the expensive designer luggage, handbags, etc.

Silk stockings. The real thing, complete with those now-unfamiliar touches such as seams that went out of style with panty hose. Imported from England, the stockings cost $25 and are available in silver or black only.

A toy automobile that runs on its own live steam and travels a third of a mile in 15 minutes. Cost: $75.

Limited edition perfume. At $175 an ounce, it's in the running for the title of most expensive perfume around. The Jean Patou scent is advertised as being "so rare and available to so few, each flask is registered."

They also make contact with dissident officers in the Cuban army who are soon given major roles in the plot. Everything seems set for Operation Patty to be carried out.

This is when Operation Candela (Candela, the Cuban counter-plan, starts. The dissident officers turn out to be Cuban agents, and in a few feet of film, all conspirators are arrested or shot.

Members Like No Profits

VANCOUVER (CP) — It is possible to do your banking, buy groceries, appliances, gas and hardware, pay rent, buy insurance and listen to the radio in Vancouver without dealing with any profit-making organizations.

More than 100,000 people in British Columbia belong to 350 retail co-operatives which exchange shares for cash and give members the right to use the service and help run it.

There are credit unions, housing co-ops, transportation co-ops providing bus service to work in company towns and CFRO-FM in Vancouver, a co-operative radio station whose members produce all local programming.

Co-op members join for two reasons, said Mogans Piegrass, special projects adviser of Federated Co-operatives Ltd. in B.C.

"Some people join co-ops because they believe in co-op principles and they see it as a method of getting some democracy into the business place."

"And some are in it for the saving, strictly dollars and cents. People feel there must be better ways of coping with the cost of living. Co-ops are one of the ways."

All decisions in co-ops are made by annually elected executives.

Within the co-operative movement are two groups, the established co-ops and alternative co-ops.

Established co-ops run on a businesslike basis and include the 62 member-co-ops of Federated, the 600,000-member credit unions and the Co-operative Insurance Service.

The alternative co-ops deal mainly in food and start with politically or lifestyle-based groups, using volunteer labor to avoid high costs.

In many B.C. towns members pay a nominal $1 or $3 share fee to shop in a co-op and pay supermarket prices. Members get dividends at the end of the year adding up to a one-to-five-per-cent rebate on the year's purchases.

Surrey Co-op is a 57-year-old operation with 17,000 members and $31 million in sales last year and is the only Federated member in Greater Vancouver. It sells groceries, feed, hardware, home supplies, gasoline and bulk oil.

It opened a $2-million home centre in Cloverdale last month which will form part of a new shopping centre development, mixing private and co-op businesses.

Even though it is B.C.'s largest consumer co-operative it still is as responsive as ever to member needs, said Bernie Bielby, director of member and public relations.

The big department stores are in it for profit but well carrying what the members want and just break even on it.

"If they want something they can't get, we'll go out of our way to get it for them."

The members of the alternative co-operatives say the big co-operatives don't go far enough.

Traditional co-ops "don't teach people much about where their food comes from or what's in it," says Keith Jardine, one of five paid workers at Fed-Up Co-operative Wholesalers. "They tend to support the status quo."

Fed-Up supplies mainly processed and more expensively packaged than they need to be. We buy in bulk and package it ourselves-like putting it in a paper bag."

Savings of up to 15 or 20 per cent are possible this way, he said.

Each co-op must provide two people, four times a year to work for a week at the Fed-Up warehouse to eat labor costs and keep people involved.

Members take turns working out of their homes or small warehouses to distribute pre-ordered food in most smaller co-ops.

"We try to de-emphasize supermarket foods," said Mr. Jardine.

"They're often overly processed and more expensively packaged than they need to be. We buy in bulk and package it ourselves-like putting it in a paper bag."

Savings of up to 15 or 20 per cent are possible this way, he said.

Each co-op must provide

PQ Win Helps Quebec Tories?

QUEBEC (CP) — The press president of the national Progressive Conservative party says the recent Parti Quebecois victory may help the Tories score an electoral breakthrough at the federal level in Quebec.

Michael Meighen told reporters following a meeting of the Conservative party's national executive committee Saturday that the PQ win has changed the political climate of the province.

He said the Quebecers are more willing to consider a new federal option and this has encouraged us to redouble our efforts."

Meighen also reminded reporters that the Tories traditionally called to fill a vacancy in Prince Edward Island.

The Conservatives currently hold only four of Quebec's 74 seats in the house of Communes.

Harbor Changes 'A Pig in a Poke'

By ALLEN BINKLEY

OTTAWA (CP) — A government bill consolidating administration of 2,350 small fishing and recreational harbors across the country is a kind of "pig in a poke," Stu Leggatt (NDP-New Westminster) said Friday.

Fishermen on both coasts "want to know how much they're going to get" from the development of harbors. But all they are receiving is a promise that "in the future the government might provide additional fishing harbors," he said.

He spoke in the Commons during start of debate on a bill that shifts the fisheries department from the transport and public works departments, control over the small harbors and piers that first appeared in 1885 and was amended in 1937.

Harbor administration has to be adaptable to the needs of the 38,000 commercial fishing vessels in Canada, LeBlanc said.

"The promotion of a vigorous and healthy fishing industry is a priority of this government," LeBlanc said. A good harbor administration was an essential ingredient.

But Lloyd Crouse (PC South Shore) said the bill will only add to the burdens facing fishermen already battling with depleting fish stocks and dramatically rising operating costs.

"And it does nothing to upgrade their facilities . . . The government gives too low a priority for the vast areas" of coastline and waterways that are involved.

Leggett said residents of the Atlantic and Pacific coasts get treated to election promises of new wharves or overhauls of existing facilities. They then have to wait for another election to hear anything more from the government.

The bill "won't mean any change in tip-up facilities for small boatmen."

In a team-of-four match, when a member of a team feels that his side is losing, he will quite often gamble either the bidding or play to try to swing the ultimate outcome in his favor. On occasion, the gamble turns out well. More often, it does not.

Today's deal serves as an example of a gambling play achieving the desired result. It was the last deal of the match, and the East defender had the feeling that desperation measures were needed for his team to emerge victorious. So he gambled in his defensive play — and triumphed.

Jack Cassidy Dies In After-Party Fire

LOS ANGELES — A smouldering cigarette may have caused a fire that killed actor-singer Jack Cassidy, sweeping his penthouse apartment after a party and charring his body beyond recognition, a fire official says.

The body was discovered early Sunday in the West Hollywood apartment belonging to the dimpled, silver-haired performer. It was several hours before the coroner's office said that dental charts had confirmed the victim was Cassidy, 48, father of one-time teen-age singing idol David Cassidy and former husband of actress-singer Shirley Jones.

An autopsy was scheduled for today, but the spokesman said there is no evidence to indicate anything but an accidental death.

Investigators said his fourth-floor apartment was littered with cigarette butts apparently left from a Saturday night party.

DETROIT — Detroit policeman Harry Larsosa was sitting at his dispatching console at police headquarters when the men in blue came for him.

Larsosa, 25, was taken to the ninth-floor lockup, fingerprinted and booked on a warrant signed by a traffic court judge. He was released later on $500 bond. Larsosa had 48 unpaid parking tickets.

LOS ANGELES — Fathia Ghali, an Egyptian "princess" who was stripped of her royal title when she married a commoner, has been slain by her estranged husband, who then apparently tried to commit suicide, police reported Sunday.

Riad Ghali, 36, who had been separated from his wife for seven years, was listed in stable condition at County-USC Medical Centre. He has been booked on suspicion of murder.

AUSTRALIA RAISES $

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — The Australian government revised its currency upwards against the U.S. dollar today for the second time since a record 17.5-per-cent devaluation two weeks ago. The Labor opposition party accused the government of incompetence.

The Reserve Bank said the Australian dollar is being revalued by 1.28 per cent and now will be worth $1.0521 U.S., compared with $1.0388 Friday.

The net devaluation since the surprise devaluation announced on Nov. 28 now stands at 14.66 per cent.

When Cliff Harrison goes shopping for lottery tickets he doesn't stop at buying one or two — he buys them by the hundreds.

Take the last Loto Canada draw for example. The 72-year-old North Pender Island resident had 400 tickets riding on that one.

And the Provincial. So far he's got 500 tickets and expects to buy several hundred more before the big draw New Year's Eve.

How does he afford it? Simple. He sells nine tenths interest in the tickets to his friends, relatives, the public. The remaining share he keeps for himself.

At first it was just a diversion. Now it's a business. He's even formed his own company — Cliff Harrison Personal Lottery Service, duly registered at the Companies Office.

Why does he do it? That's simple too.

"I like to gamble," he says. "And it's a lot cheaper than going to Reno or Las Vegas once or twice a year."

As a gambler he knows lottery buyers are playing against some pretty heady odds unless they spread their chances on a number of tickets.

For $10, Harrison's customers get a one tenth share in a block of 10 different tickets, carefully selected with no two tickets sequentially numbered and mixed equally among the lottery series.

Harrison says he photostats the block, sends a copy to the customer and places the tickets in a Victoria bank until the draw. He notifies the winners, collects the winnings and pays off by cheque or money order. He says he guarantees complete confidentiality.

Invariably the average person selling lottery tickets

just sells tickets. That's all they do. But me, I try to offer a personal service."

The idea germinated last spring when he and his family made group purchases on two Olympic draws — buying nine in one, 15 in the other. They won $100 in the first and doubled their money in the second.

He applied for and got a license to act as retailer for the Victoria lottery distributor, United Commercial Travellers, and as such is entitled to a discount, 50 cents on the $5 Provincial ticket and 40 cents on the $10 Loto Canada.

Harrison, a retired salesman and businessman, laughs

at any suggestion he's making a profit. His promotional costs, he says, run into the hundreds of dollars and so far have been met largely out of his own pocket.

But it's been worth it.

The response to his ads, he says, has justified his judgment there are a lot of people who share his view that, with lotteries, group participation is the only way to go.

He received $3,600 in his campaign soliciting partners in the last Loto. Adding $400 of his own money he bought 400 tickets.

The fact there were only four winning tickets worth a total of $1,200 doesn't deter him. Neither apparently has it detected his customers. The money keeps pouring in.

"Let's face it," he says, "you can't deny lotteries are becoming a way of life and are here to stay."

He restricts his service to only those lotteries offering a million dollar first prize.

"I'll never win a million dollars ... but maybe $10,000," he muses.

But if he did he hasn't a clue what he'd do with the money.

"To tell the truth I've never thought much about it."

The reason is, he explains, he's having too much fun right now.

TEA SLOWS U.K.

LONDON (Reuters) — Longer tea breaks by workers are among the reasons British factory building is slower than abroad, an industrial report said today.

The report by the National Economic Development Office, from a study of 18 British and foreign factory sites, said British projects take longer, have higher manning levels for lower productivity, and less of the working day is spent working — largely as a result of more generous allowances for such things as tea breaks, walking to and from work and time-wasting activities.

City Firemen Vote To Strike Jan. 1

Victoria firefighters say they will strike Jan. 1 unless, in the next two and a half weeks, they receive payment in full of their 1976 arbitration award granting them parity with their Vancouver counterparts.

Ross Cameron, president of the Victoria local of the International Firefighters Association, said today a strike vote conducted over the weekend was supported by 97 per cent of the membership.

He said the city refuses to honor its commitments under the arbitration settlement, and the firefighters are "fed-up and sick and tired of this whole shtick."

"As of zero-zero-one hours Jan. 1 if we haven't received full implementation of the award — with the exception of a couple of items still to be clarified — plus full retroactivity, we'll be going out," he added.

Victoria firefighters were recently awarded a 7½ percent increase. Victoria firefighters had been given an interim increase of 2.56 percent, along with fringe benefits.

City manager Jim Bramley said today the municipal employers' group, the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association, has offered what is in effect another four per cent, bringing firefighters up to "the ultimate maximum as far as Anti-Inflation Board regulations for 1976 are concerned."

The original arbitration award granting Victoria parity with Vancouver was higher than that, and Bramley expressed the personal view that both awards will be rolled back.

11 Executives to Trial

TORONTO (CP) — Eleven dredging industry executives were ordered today to stand trial on conspiracy charges involving alleged fraudulent dealings in dredging contracts worth more than $4.3 million.

A 12th, John MacDonald of North Vancouver, vice-president of Dillingham Corp. of Canada, was discharged after a preliminary hearing which began 33 months ago before Chief Provincial Judge Fred Hayes.

A publicity ban was placed on proceedings at the hearing. MacDonald, who said he was "relieved, ecstatic and vindicated," estimated the hearing has cost about $2 million, including $150,000 for him and his firm.

The 11 persons committed to stand trial are: Jean Simard, Montreal, vice-president and director of Marine Industries Ltd. and J. P. Porter Co., Montreal; Harold McNamara, chairman and president of McNamara Corp., Toronto; Sydney Cooper, president of Pitts Engineering Construction Ltd., Toronto; Gerard Filion, former president of Marine Industries Ltd., Montreal; Louis Rochele, St. Bruno, Que., executive vice-president of Marine Industries Ltd., Montreal; Bruno Desjardins, Baie d'Urse, Que., director of J. P. Porter Co.; Hugh A. Martin, Vancouver, chairman of Canadian Dredge and Dock Co. and Marwell Dredging Ltd., Vancouver; Frank Hamata, Richmond, B.C., president of Sceptre Dredging Ltd., Vancouver; Albert G. Gill, Richmond, B.C., senior vice-president of Sceptre

Lotta's 30-Year Crusade Sparked by Own Hunger

For Dr. Lotta Hitzchmanova the experience of gnawing hunger triggered a life-long devotion to helping those who do not have enough to eat.

During the Second World War, the executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada was a refugee in southern France.

During that period she learned "how frighteningly extreme hunger hurts and degrades."

Deeply affected by her experience, she organized the USC in 1945 in order to help "that huge, silent, suffering mass of human beings" who don't get enough to eat.

Since that time she has criss-crossed the world many times over in her battle against poverty and suffering.

In the first six months of this year, she visited 17 countries, travelling 55,000 miles overseas and 25,000 miles in Canada which she crossed twice.

As a result of her efforts, and through annual fund-raising and special gifts, the USC now supports 147 projects in 12 countries, four of which are among the least developed countries in the world.

Those four, which will receive the lion's share of the $2.5 million, the objective of this year's fund drive, are Bangladesh, Lesotho in southern Africa, Nepal and Vietnam.

Leigh Given 2-1 Margin By Sidney

Sidney Ald. Dick Leigh easily won election Saturday as mayor of Sidney, beating opponent Eric Sherwood by more than a two-to-one margin.

Leigh received 1,107 votes and Sherwood, a North Saanich alderman, got 538.

The election became necessary when Mayor Peter Malcolm announced in October that he was resigning midway through his two-year term to work for a brokerage firm in Vancouver.

There were 4,189 eligible voters and 39 per cent turned out to cast their ballots.

Malcolm was also Sidney's representative on the Capital Region Board. Sherwood and Sidney Ald. Jerry Tregaskis were vying for that seat and because of Sherwood's loss, Tregaskis becomes the new representative.

Leigh, 64, a retired Air Canada shop superintendent, said today "I'm just catching my breath — glad that it's all over."

He said one immediate task he has is to prepare his inaugural speech for Jan. 4 when it is officially sworn in as mayor.

Also keeping him busy will be the appointment of a member-at-large from the Saanich Peninsula water commission and cooperating with North Saanich in setting up a recreation centre committee.

He said Tregaskis will be Sidney council's representative on the recreation committee as well as the water commission, which will begin operating Jan. 1.

The commission, comprised of representatives from North Saanich, Central Saanich and Sidney and the three existing water districts, will be responsible for local distribution of water.

Leigh said today he does not agree with Malcolm's charge that Sherwood was "an outsider" and a "puppet of North Saanich Mayor Paul Grieve."

"He (Sherwood) is just as much his own man as I am," Leigh said.

Gunman Silenced By Clerk

A desk clerk at the Royal Oak Inn in Saanich, facing a gun-wielding bandit early today, may have prevented a robbery by his action — or lack of it.

When confronted by the robber, clerk Richard Walde, 29, froze and ignored the bandit's gestures to put money into his canvas money bag.

The robber stood there for a moment or two and then fled empty-handed. No words were exchanged.

Saanich police were called shortly after the 6 a.m. attempted robbery. They are looking for a suspect wearing a black leather motorcycle jacket and carrying a blue-barreled revolver believed to be .32-calibre.

The robber had a ski mask pulled over his face at the time. He is about 5 feet, 10 inches tall and 150 to 160 pounds.

Before an NIP agreement is reached, the city is supposed to review zoning of the area to determine if municipal action will be necessary to ensure stability, Blencoe said.

He said a down-zoning bylaw has been on the books since last January and council has done nothing about it. As a result, widespread demolition to make way for multiple-dwelling buildings has taken place.

"The city has not provided any zoning to ensure stability," said.

Blencoe says the FCA does not want every old house in the area designated as a heritage structure, but it is angry because the houses being destroyed are good, solid structures, not derelicts.

"It's difficult enough to find good, affordable housing in this city," he says.

Car Crash Kills Man

Gordon Scott Williamson, 22, of Carey Road, was killed Sunday when the car he was driving went out of control in the 250-block Jackie Road in Langford and struck a hydro pole.

Passenger Donna Patterson, 17, was taken to Victoria General Hospital and treated for minor injuries. The accident is still under investigation by Colwood RCMP.

"He (Sherwood) is just as much his own man as I am," Leigh said.

A Time for Canadians to Hang Tough

UNTIL A VERY FEW years ago, most English-speaking Canadians took it for granted that Canada had settled into its permanent mould. We were a band of 10 provinces and two territories snugly joined by Confederation, and such we would remain.

True, one or another of the partners showed occasional signs of restiveness.

It wasn't hard to find an unreconstructed Newfoundland who wondered if his province had made a mistake when it entered our union. The West blamed the East — which largely ignore it — for inequitable freight rates. Then there was Quebec, released from the Duplessis tyranny and searching for answers to problems peculiarly its own.

But all this was no more than the healthy yearning to be expected in a still-young country. We could rest easy in the comfortable assurance that the fabric of Confederation was not threatened. With hindsight to help, I can see that ours was a simplistic belief based on the fallacy that what must continue to be. It did not merely overlook the possibility of change — it accepted as gospel the sardonic dictum that though everything changes, everything remains the same.

Yet even then, changes that may profoundly alter our Canadian prospect were in the making.

In Quebec, a brilliant radio commentator named Rene Levesque emerged from a bitter CBC-French network strike with harsh thoughts about national unity as a myth designed to soothe fractious minorities. He styled himself a Quebec nationalist in those years, but his less formal utterances when reviewed today have the ring of prophecy.

Now what is the sense of having a bed-mate when you can't stand the touch of one another?" astute writer-editor Gerald Clark of Montreal quoted the Levesque of the early 1960s as remarking.

"While you cannot carry the analogy of marriage too far, at least there is a lesson to be learned from an unhappy marriage — a trial separation, maybe, with the understanding there could be reconciliation later."

There is nothing to indicate that Levesque as Quebec's new premier has changed his basic view. Outright separation may never come to pass, if only because of the cost to Quebec of gains made within the shelter of Confederation.

But everything changes and nothing is the same in Canada since the election that placed avowed separatist Levesque at the head of Quebec's provincial government, and anyone who feels that Confederation is worth keeping should be acutely aware of this fact.

To me, the most ominous upshot of that election is not the presence of a separatist government in Quebec City. It is the reaction of an English-speaking West which is being crowded dangerously close to its own point of decision.

The threat from Quebec is finding its answer in a hardened attitude even among Westerners who a year or two ago would have laughed off or angrily rejected the possibility of a shattered Confederation.

If we were faced with an all-Canada referendum on Quebec separation proposed by Prime Minister Trudeau (surely in a misplaced attempt at humor!), there's no present guess as to what the answer might be.

The Fernwood Community Association is consulting lawyers over the weekend demolition of 11 homes to make way for a condominium project.

The homes were bulldozed in the Fernwood area in what the FCA claims was a violation of Neighborhood Improvement Program guidelines.

The association wants to know if the city disregarded the guidelines by having the homes demolished rather than preserved and upgraded.

At the city's request, Fernwood was designated an NIP area and the city was given $750,000 to undertake improvements.

However, in the meantime the council recommends that before Oct. 31, 1977, when some basic principles and long-term policies have been established.

The council recommends trustees not commit themselves to any of the options before Oct. 31, 1977, when some basic principles and long-term policies have been established.

The council recommends that the options are contained in the 12th report from the district's planning council, headed by assistant superintendent Dr. John Wiens.

The council recommends that the options are presented with five options which could save $1 million to $12 million over the next four years.
